PREFACE

Woodstock - 7.00

I SHALL not consume time, or occupy space, or weary my reader with a recital of the vexatious and exasperating difficulties that have attended the preparation of this book. Long and tedious has been the search, but it is now ended, the worry is past, the work is done. I claim no merit for artistic finish. My endeavor has been to state facts of family history so plainly that those that run may read and understand.

It has been purely a labor of love, prompted by a loyal interest in my family history. It was not undertaken with any thought of pecuniary profit. In my search for a more extended knowledge of my ancestry, while groping in the dark, catching only a gleam now and then, I conceived the thought of hanging out a few beacon lights to guide the future wayfarer in a laudable search for a knowledge of those that have gone before.

If I have succeeded in so placing such lights that they will send a gleam athwart the pathway of the generations that will follow me, I shall feel amply repaid for my labor.

THE AUTHOR.

HUGHES FAMILY

Found Throughout the World—Always Ranged on the Side of Liberty

BY ELEANOR LEXINGTON

THE Hughes family has always been largely represented in Wales, England, Ireland and America, and has furnished many prominent personages. Its roster of poets alone is a notable one, and if the family have not furnished all the best poems in the world, it is not their fault, but their oversight.

Hugh Hughes is a favorite combination, and one thus called, born at the end of the seventeenth century, was a Welsh poet of renown. He was the son of Iruffydd Hughes, a descendant of the Lord Twrcelyn. Hugh Hughes' verses are preserved in the British museum. The family wrote history, as well as poetry, and they were equally mighty with the sword. Admiral Sir Richard Hughes was a man of valor. Margaret Hughes centested with Mary Betterton, the position of the earliest actress of the English stage, which, in fact, belongs to neither. Margaret is the earliest recorded Desdemona, and the date is 1663.

No one, of course, forgets that "TomBrown's School Days" was written by Thomas Hughes, founder of the Rugby colony in Tennessee. And one of the Governors of this State was a Hughes. Thomas Hughes was the son of John, who was the son of "clever, active Mrs. Hughes," a friend of Walter Scott's. "The Magical Lay of the One-Horse Chay" is attributed to John Hughes, and Scott refers to it. The lay "shows up" Mr. and Mrs.

John Ball, and tells about Mr. Bubb who "lived quite genteel with a one-horse chay."

"Mrs. Bubb was gay and free, fair, fat and forty-three.
"And filled the better half of the one-horse chay."

One line of Hughes descends from one of the fifteen noble tribes of Gwynedd, Princes of Wales, taking up, along the line, ancestors who rather tax the orthography of this simplified date. There was Hugh ap Kynric and his wife Gwenllian, daughter of John Vychan ap John, ap Iruffydd ap Owen Pygott. You put "Hughes" in somewhere, where most convenient.

Hugh is the foundation stone of this name, and means affability and also comfort; it likewise means, in Gaelic, a guest, as well as a stranger.

Hughes, Huget and Hewitt are the sons of Hugh. Hig, Hug and Hick, nicknames of Hugh, give the names of Higgins, Huggins, Hicks, Hiccoçk and Hutchins. Fitz-hugh is the son of Hugh.

Hewes and Huse are forms frequently found in colonial records, when one style of spelling was as good as another. Abel Huse, born in London, with wife Mary, settled in Newbury, Mass., in 1635. They had sons, Thomas and James. A Captain, Samuel Huse, born 1730, is called son of James.

Other pioneers, or founders of families, were Richard Hughes, 1640, of Guilford, Conn.; Arthur, 1676, of Salem, Mass., and John, of Hatfield, a soldier.

Henry Freeman Hughes and his brother Bodwell, born in Wales, settled at East Haven, Conn., about 1740. Their name more frequently occurs as Huse. Henry married Lydia Tuttle, July 19, 1749, and with his bride, acquired a large property, which she inherited from her father. If a mental photograph of Henry is desired by his descendants, here it is: Medium height, stout, well built, blue eyes, brown hair, prominent features, massive head; physical characteristics these of the Hughes family.

Bodwell Hughes married Mary Collins. Henry had five children—three being sons.

THE HUGHES COAT OF ARMS

Jesse Hughes, the Virginia pioneer, is called a Huguenot refugee. He and his wife came to Powhatan County, Virginia, about 1675, where the place he owned, called "Hughes Creek," remained in the family for four generations. From Virginia, the family branched out, to West Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky, and later to Colorado.

The Hughes of South Carolina, however, claim New England ancestry, Jesse, of the third generation, was an Indian fighter, a brave man, and a West Virginia explorer. Of this line was Martha Hughes, who married George Walton, the uncle of George Walton, of Virginia, a "signer."

The Hughes' record is a patriotic one all along the line, George Robert Twelve Hughes was one of the Boston "Tea Party" 1773. James Hughes, of Pennsylvania, who was one of Washington's body guard. Joseph Hewes, of New Jersey, was a "signer." Connecticut gave to the Revolution Lieutenant James, Massachusetts; Lieutenant Samuel, Rhode Island; Lieutenant Thomas, New York; Assistant Quartermaster Hugh, Pennsylvania; Lieutenant Greenberry Hughes, and Virginia, Ensigns Henry and Pratt; Cornet Jasper; Lieutenant John and Thomas, and Captain Robert, the grandson of Jesse Hughes, immigrant Jesse, son of David Hughes, of Virginia, was a Captain in the War of 1812, and married Elizabeth Morton. David's wife was Judith Daniel.

Among marriage connections of the Hughes are the Fays, Kingsbury and Lewises, of Virginia; Jane, daughter of Jane Strother and Thomas Lewis, who was a burgess, married Thomas Hughes, about 1775. Galloways and Chews are also nearly related, and in "Americans of Royal descent" we find that the Chew and Hughes connection trace descent from Henry II., of England, and his Queen Eleanor, of Aquitaine.

Characteristics of the Hughes are quick perceptions and practical reasoning; they are original in thought, independent in action, simple in their tastes and habits. Of one, it is said that, "he exercised his mind with contemplation, and his body with actions, and preserved the health of both."

Of another, it is written, that "her life was a benediction rather than a sermon."

The coat-of-arms reproduced is blazoned in Burke's "Peerage;" Argent; an eagle with two heads, displayed, sable.

Crest: An eagle's head erased, sable; in the beak, a brand, raguly of the same, fired, gules.

Motto: Fynno Duw Diefydd—what God wills, will be, or let God's will be done.

Another coat-of-arms is gules; two lions passant; a rose in chief, argent. Crest, granted 1620; out of a coronet, or, a demi-lion, argent, holding a rose, gules. This is the coat-armor borne by the line, tracing back to Cadwalader, son of Griffith, ap Cynan, King of North Wales, and his wife Dyddgy, daughter of Meredith ap Cynfyn. The arms of Sir Richard Hughes, baronet, 1773, is: Azure; a lion, rampant, or Crest: A lion, couchant, or Both—the eagle and lion are most heraldic charges.

The English family of Hughes have homes in Devon; Surrey; Kent, Warwick; Sherdley Hall, Lancaster, and the Isle of Wight, where they hold positions of prominence.

INTRODUCTION

THE foregoing able and scholarly article, written by Eleanor Lexington, and published in the St. Paul Daily Dispatch, of August 8, 1908, is both interesting and instructive. The light that it casts upon the etymology of the name Hughes is of great value. That it is historically true in the main I know no reason to doubt. I find but one historical error in it, and that is probably the fault of the printer. The Joseph Hewes that was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was from North Carolina and not from New Jersey as stated by Miss Lexington.

That any part of this article has reference to our branch of the Hughes family there is no positive proof known to me; though there is some pretty strong circumstantial evidence in the case of the Jesse Hughes that settled in Powhatan County, Virginia, in 1675. From reliable information I have been able to trace my family lineage back to Leander Hughes, who appears to have been born in Cumberland County, Virginia, about the year 1700, as will be seen later. It is said that Leander's father, whose Christian name is not known, came from Wales. Could he have been this same Jesse that with his wife settled in Powhattan County in 1675? That theory appears plausible as the circumstances as to time connect very well, and Powhatan County joins Cumberland on the east.

From Miss Lexington's article it appears that one branch of the Hughes family claims descent from Henry II. of England and his wife, Eleanor, Duchess of Aguitaine. It has been said that a noble ancestry is a gift of the gods; but what is a noble ancestry?

INTRODUCTION

THE foregoing able and scholarly article, written by Eleanor Lexington, and published in the St. Paul Daily Dispatch, of August 8, 1908, is both interesting and instructive. The light that it casts upon the etymology of the name Hughes is of great value. That it is historically true in the main I know no reason to doubt. I find but one historical error in it, and that is probably the fault of the printer. The Joseph Hewes that was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was from North Carolina and not from New Jersey as stated by Miss Lexington.

That any part of this article has reference to our branch of the Hughes family there is no positive proof known to me; though there is some pretty strong circumstantial evidence in the case of the Jesse Hughes that settled in Powhatan County, Virginia, in 1675. From reliable information I have been able to trace my family lineage back to Leander Hughes, who appears to have been born in Cumberland County, Virginia, about the year 1700, as will be seen later. It is said that Leander's father, whose Christian name is not known, came from Wales. Could he have been this same Jesse that with his wife settled in Powhatan County in 1675? That theory appears plausible as the circumstances as to time connect very well, and Powhatan County joins Cumberland on the east.

Descent from a royal family is honorable only in pro-illustrious life of Henry V; the weak and ignominious reign of Henry VI; the brilliant career of Prince John, Duke of Bedford, pride of the English nobility, with Knight and vassal sweeping over the fair fields of France like the besom of destruction, leaving death and desolation in his track, and at last stamping his name with everlasting infamy with the indelible stain of the blood of Joan de Arc; the enormities of Edward IV and infamous brother, Richard III, the latter of whom expiated his manifold crimes with his life upon Bosworth Field; the cruel wickedness of beastly old Henry VIII, with his hands red with the blood of two wives; the appalling crimes of Mary I; the glorious reign of Elizabeth; the despotic career and tragic ending of Charles I; the tyranny and final flight from the country of James II; and the long and glorious reign of that queenly woman and womanly queen, Victoria, must all be taken as a whole by those who claim their descent from Henry and Eleanor. We can not accept the good and reject the bad.

Query; is the honor worth contending for?

I have inserted Miss Lexington's article and the Hughes coat-of-arms in this book on account of their historic value. I take great interest in heraldry. Emblems of honor, heraldic tokens won by chivalrous and patriotic service rendered by men should inspire a loyal family pride in the descendants of such heroes. Edward, the Black Prince, won deathless fame by his chivalry at the battle of Cressy, when he captured the banner of John, King of Bohemia, on which was inscribed the legend "Ich Dien" (I serve) and which became the motto of the Prince of Wales, and has so continued to the present day.

These things are fine to hand down to one's descendants; but the best and the brightest escutcheon of all is one emblazoned with honesty, integrity, and a conscience void of guile. Looking back along all the different lines of my ancestry I find an unbroken succession of plain, honest, industrious, intelligent, God-loving and God-fearing people, literally fulfilling the divine fiat, "By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread;" faithfully rendering quid pro quo in all the relations of life; toiling by day and at night sleeping the sleep of the just; looking every man in the face, and bowing the knee to none but their God. Such have been my progenitors throughout their generations. I have never yet heard of an ancestor of mine that was ever convicted of, or even charged with, a crime or high misdemeanor; or one that ever soiled his pocket with a foul penny.

"Let no mean hope your souls enslave;
Be independent, generous, brave;
Your fathers such example gave,
And such revere!"

Far better and more glorious is this than all the crowns and coronets and scepters and heraldic emblems that ever flashed in the sunlight of heaven.

Sizing up the whole case, I believe if I could choose my own line of descent, I would strike an average and take it from John Bunyon or poor, blind, old John Milton, rather than from the English royal family.

This family history is not perfect. No history of the kind ever was. Of some branches of the family I have been able to obtain only a very partial sketch, while of others every trace has been lost. If I have said more about some branches of the family than of others it is because I have been more fully advised about some than about others. It has been my aim to do exact justice to all persons mentioned as nearly as the facts at my command would permit. A great deal of my information was given by persons who were themselves only partially acquainted with the facts, but kindly gave them as best they could.

Many very intelligent people get mixed up in regard to the degree of relationship between cousins one or more times removed. Therefore, I take the liberty of giving a little explanation of my own, thus:

| | | |
|---|------------------------|-----|
| 0 | A is a first cousin to | B 0 |
| 1 | C | D 1 |
| 2 | E | F 2 |
| 3 | G | H 3 |

In the above C is a son of A, E is a son of C and G a son of E.

D is a son of B; F is a son of D and H a son of F. The small figures on each side indicate the number of removals from first cousins.

Now, we add the number of removals on both sides, and their sum +1 represents the degree of relationship. We wish to know the relationship between B. and G. Then we have B 0, G 3. That gives the equation $0+3+1=4$. B and G are fourth cousins.

For A and D we have $0+1+1=2$, second cousins. For C and D, $1+1+1=3$, third cousins. For G and H, $3+3+1=7$, seventh cousins, and so on ad infinitum.

A very little study of the above will enable one readily to arrive at the degree of relationship between cousins, no matter how distant.

This method of ascertaining the degree of relationship between distant cousins is the legal one employed by the courts of this country in deciding cases involving the law of inheritance. In case of the death of G. without children or any other heirs nearer than cousins, D would inherit in preference to F, and F in preference to H, and so on.

I feel that I would be remiss in duty if I should fail to acknowledge my obligation to the many relatives and friends that have aided me in gathering the information, without which this history could not have been written. I shall endeavor to mention every one without exception. If I omit any it will be an oversight. They are as follows:

For information concerning the older members of the Gass and Boze families I am indebted wholly to the unfading memory of my mother, together with her abiding interest in her family and its history. All that I am able to give the reader in regard to the early history of those two families is taken from notes that I jotted down at her dictation many years ago. I could not have obtained the information from any one else.

Now, only a word more in conclusion: I have endeavored to give the address of each person so far as known, but doubtless in some instances, the wrong address has been obtained, and in many others the address has been changed. It has also been my aim to give full names, but it is very probable that in some instances the full name has not been given, but only the name by which the person is most generally known. No one but myself knows how difficult it has been in some cases to get even that.

Doubtless, in many instances, births and deaths have occurred since I obtained the facts that I have given, and, of course, those facts will not appear in this book.

CHAPTER I.

Our family, as the name indicates, is of Welsh origin. From the most reliable traditions of the family, it appears that Leander Hughes was born in Cumberland County, Virginia, about, or a very little after, the year 1700. Leander's father, whose first name I have not succeeded in obtaining, was a native of Wales, and migrated to Virginia, probably some time prior to the year 1700.

Leander appears to have bequeathed his name as a patronymic to his descendants; for from his day there has been a constant stream of Leanders all along down the line. We often find in the same family a son named Leander and a daughter with the abbreviated name of Lea, and some times a daughter with the full name of Leander.

I do not know whether or not Leander had any brothers or sisters, nor the name of his wife, nor what children were born to him, except two sons, Powell and Stephen. I know not which of the two was the older. It appears that they were born and reared in Cumberland County, Virginia, but that at some time in the early part of their lives, they moved to Prince Edward County, Va., and settled side by side, both on Rack Island Creek, Powell above and Stephen below, where they spent the remainder of their lives, reared their families and died.

Powell and Stephen both served in the American army in the Revolutionary War, and Stephen was wounded in some one of the battles in which he was engaged.

I know not the name of Stephen's wife, nor of any of his children, except two sons, Archibald and John, the latter generally called Jack throughout his life. It appears that Archibald died in early life, and I think unmarried.

Jack married his cousin Edith Hughes, a daughter of Powell Hughes. With this brief sketch, the history of Stephen Hughes and his descendants will close, except as to the descendants of his son Jack who married his cousin Edith, and who will be mentioned in the proper place.

With Powell Hughes our family history first emerges from the shadows into the perfect light. He was born June 22, 1740, and died March 5, 1823. He married Elizabeth Coleman, who was born April 24, 1744. I am not advised as to the date of her marriage with Powell Hughes, nor of her death.

Powell Hughes was possessed of considerable wealth in land and slaves. He appears to have been a farmer all his life. Following is a list of his children given in the exact order of their ages:

- | | |
|-----------------|-------------|
| 1—Little Berry. | 5—Elizabeth |
| 2—Mary. | 6—John. |
| 3—Edith. | 7—Susannah. |
| 4—Leander. | 8—Gedeliah. |

There were, as will be seen, 8 in number, 4 sons and 4 daughters. I have not succeeded in obtaining the ages of any except Little Berry, the oldest, but there is no doubt as to my giving them in the order of their births.

Three of the sons and three daughters migrated to Smith County, Tennessee, though all of them except Gedeliah, the youngest, married in Prince Edward County, Virginia. John married Sallie Staples, and so far as is known never left his native county. Nothing whatever is known of his descendants.

Elizabeth married a gospel minister, I think of the Baptist denomination, by the name of Matthews, Christian name not known, and is supposed to have spent her entire life in Virginia.

As has already been stated, the remaining six, all moved to Smith County, Tennessee; and will be taken up in the order of their ages, and when one is introduced his or her posterity will be given so far as known before another is commenced.

JOHN JAMES HUGHES AND WIFE, SUSAN

Little Berry Hughes.

Little Berry Hughes, the oldest child of Powell Hughes and Elizabeth Hughes, nee Coleman, was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, October 15, 1770. He married Mary Walker, a daughter of William and Lucy Walker, in Prince Edward County, Virginia, on May 3rd, 1798. Mary was born Sept. 16, 1780.

He moved to Smith County, Tennessee, in 1810, and settled on the Dry Fork of Mulherrin's Creek, about seven miles southeast of Carthage, the county-seat, and less than a mile from New Middleton. The place is now the home of Robert M. Baird.

Here Little Berry became prominent as a farmer, trader and politician. He was successively elected to the lower house of the Legislature in 1815, 1817 and 1819; and to the State Senate in 1825; and was a candidate for election to one house or the other of the Legislature at the time of his death, which occurred on June 26, 1835. His wife died in 1838.

I obtained the information concerning his legislative record from the public archives in the office of the Secretary of State at Nashville; and it is a fact worthy of note that in each of his elections to the lower house his name is enrolled as Littleberry Hughes, there being no division in his Christian name. In the Senate he is enrolled as L. B. Hughes. I am almost satisfied that the name was originally written Littleberry without division, like Littlejohn, Littlepage, &c.

Notwithstanding the undeveloped condition of the country in his day, he amassed considerable wealth, consisting mainly of land and slaves. Of the latter he owned a very large number. He reared a family of 9 children, 4 sons and 5 daughters, named as follows:

- | | |
|---------------------|----------------|
| 1—William Powell. | 6—Mary. |
| 2—Lucy Lea | 7—John Walker. |
| 3—Elizabeth Walker. | 8—Gedeliah. |
| 4—Little Berry. | 9—Susannah. |
| 5—Sarah Martin. | |

There is no certainty and very little probability that the above arrangement of Little Berry Hughes' children is exactly in the order of their ages; but it is absolutely certain that William Powell was the oldest and almost certain that Susannah was the youngest. There is doubt as to which was the older Lucy Lea or Elizabeth Walker. William Powell was born Sept. 23, 1799; Little Berry, Jr., on January 19, 1808; Mary or Polly on March 25, 1812; John Walker on February 8, 1814, and Gedeliah on January 30, 1816. I have not been able to obtain the ages of the remaining four.

1—William Powell Hughes was born in Prince Edward County, Virginia, on Sept. 23, 1799, and came with his father, Little Berry Hughes, to Smith County, Tennessee, in 1810. On June 19, 1822, he married Jane Allen, who was born in Buckingham County, Virginia, on Feb. 15, 1807.

William Powell became a very prominent man in the affairs of Smith County. He conducted extensive farming operations, and was engaged in various business enterprises. He built the largest and most costly flouring mill that had at that time, ever been built in Smith County. It was a water mill, and stood on Hickman's Creek, opposite the mouth of Figg's Branch, and a mile or more above the present town of Hickman. He engaged in the manufacture of stoneware or crockery, and was extensively engaged in building public bridges.

He entered the ministry, and became one of the ablest and most eloquent and forceful Baptist preachers of his day in that section. He was for a number of years the pastor of the Baptist church at Hickman. It was during his pastorate there that the memorable controversy arose in the congregation over the question of predestination. The pastor took the anti-predestination or missionary side of the dispute, which became very bitter, resulting at last in the permanent division of the body into two congregations. They finally built two separate houses of worship.

In or about the year 1848, he moved to Green County,

Arkansas. He died either in Green or Stone County, Ark., on June 16, 1870, having been seriously afflicted with paralysis during the last 12 years of his life. His wife died December 27, 1878.

The children of William Powell and Jane (Allen) Hughes were 13 in number. Following are their names in the order of their ages:

- 1—Benjamin Franklin, born Aug. 9, 1823.
- 2—Jesse Allen, born Jan. 18, 1825.
- 3—Jane Berry, born Sept. 2, 1827.
- 4—Mary Walker, born March 5, 1829.
- 5—Nancy Walker, born Dec. 4, 1830.
- 6—Susannah, born Dec. 27, 1832.
- 7—George, born Dec. 14, 1834.
- 8—William Berry, born June 24, 1837.
- 9—William Berry (Second), born Oct. 27, 1839.
- 10—Lucy Lea, born Feb. 2, 1842.
- 11—Cornelius Allen, born Aug. 1, 1845.
- 12—Elizabeth, born Sept. 19, 1847.
- 13—James Madison Allen, born March 17, 1850.

It will be observed that there are two Walkers, three Berrys and three Allens.

1—Benjamin Franklin Hughes, whose birth date is given above, was a physician and farmer. He was twice married. His first wife was Clarissa Meridian Oakley, whom he married in Smith County, Tennessee, in January, 1846. I have not the date of her birth or death; but in January, 1868, he married his second wife, Sarah Cooper, in Stone County, Ark.

He moved from Smith County, Tenn., to Green County, Ark., in 1848, and from Green to Stone County, Ark., in 1857. He died in the latter county in 1884, near Mountain View. I have no account of the death of his second wife.

I obtained the above sketch mainly from a letter written by Dr. Hughes in 1883, and now in the possession of his cousin, Mrs. Ophelia A. (Hughes) Cunningham, of Lebanon, Tennessee, and which she has kindly permitted me to use. This letter does not give the marriages of his children, the account of which, together with the account of the doctor's death was furnished by his brother, Rev. J. M. A. Hughes, of Austin, Texas.

4—Mary Walker Hughes, daughter of William Powell, was born in Smith County, Tenn., March 5, 1829, and died at Gainsville, Green County, Ark., July 25, 1860. She married Thomas Lane in Green County, Ark. Mr. Lane died soon after marriage. It appears that his death occurred before Mary's. There was a son born of this marriage, and named Thomas Powell Lane. He appears to have become locally prominent. He was for several years Sheriff of Craighead County, Ark. I have learned no other facts concerning him.

5—Nancy Walker Hughes was born in Smith County Tennessee, Dec. 4, 1830, and died at Gainsville, Green County, Ark., Sept. 19, 1850. She married a man named Gullett, first name not learned. 11—Cornelius Allen Hughes, generally called Dick, was born in Smith County, Tenn., Aug. 1, 1845, and died at Bald Knob, Ark., March 16, 1876. He was noted for his good and amiable qualities. He never married.

12—Elizabeth, daughter of William Powell Hughes, was born in Smith County, Tenn., Sept. 19, 1847. She has married three times. She first married John Dunaway in Arkansas. Her second husband was Thomas Warren, whom she married in Williamson County, Texas. Her third husband was S. A. Spivey, a veterinary surgeon. It appears that there were no children of the first marriage. Of the second marriage there were 3 children, as follows:

a—Tennessee married R. E. Warren—no kin,—a merchant doing a large business. He conducts four large stores in the business portion of Austin, Texas.

h—Lucy Lea Hughes died Sept. 12, 1897.

This closes the record of the descendants of William Powell Hughes, the oldest of the children of Little Berry Hughes, Sr.

I exceedingly regret that some parts of the record of this interesting branch of the Hughes family are so incomplete and fragmentary; but, owing to the scattered condition of the family, it has been impossible for me to obtain any more facts than are here presented.

MISS MAUDE HUGHES

mitted to the bar early in the 50's, if not a little earlier. He was elected to the lower house of the Legislature in 1855. He married Miss Elizabeth Hughes Rucks, Dec. 23, 1862. She was a daughter of Howell and Darthula (Bradford) Rucks, was born Sept. 6, 1836. She died Dec. 26, 1894.

It is a fact worthy of note that his grandfather, Little Berry Hughes, his father, Nathan Ward, and Col. Ward himself, all at different times, represented Smith County in the Legislature.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in the Confederate army, but became disabled by sickness, and was discharged on account of disability while in Virginia. He returned home and after he had partially recovered his health he recruited a company of cavalry, and with his company, joined the Ninth Tennessee Confederate Cavalry, of which regiment he became the Colonel. His regiment was familiarly known as "Ward's Ducks." The operations of this regiment appear to have been mainly in the State of Tennessee.

In 1870 he was elected Chancellor of his, the Fourth Chancery Division. His election was contested by his opponent on technical grounds. The case was decided favorably to Col. Ward, but during the pendency of the contest he died. He was deprived of the emoluments of the office in a way that was so manifest a hardship that the Legislature by special enactment, allowed him the salary from the commencement of the term for which he was elected to the time of his death. This salary was paid to his widow. As a man, a lawyer, a soldier and a citizen, Col. Ward stood high in the esteem of all who knew him.

Col. Ward left only one child, a daughter, named Lula Lee. She married Walter Doggett Sykes, of Nashville, a dry goods salesman all his life. He was born Jan. 6, 1860. He was considered one of the best judges of dry goods in Nashville. He died May 15, 1907. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the Castner-Knott

Dry Goods Co. His widow, Mrs. Lula Lee Sykes, resides at No. 609, Dermonbreun Street, Nashville, Tennessee. She owns a home at 2225, Murphy Avenue, Nashville. She has 4 children living and 1 dead, as follows:

Mrs. Lula Lee (Ward) Sykes was born April 8, 1866.

1—Her oldest child, Lou Willie, was born July 15, 1892.

2—Walter Ward was born Nov. 7, 1894, died July 10, 1896.

3—Rucks Martin, born May 3, 1899.

4—Catharine Marie, born Feb. 22, 1902.

5—Mary Elizabeth, born March 10, 1907.

c—Martha Marion Ward was born April 19, 1828. Died at New Middleton, Tenn., July 24, 1871. On July 7, 1846, she married John Gardner Bransford, who was born in Moulton, Alabama, March 16, 1825, and died August 8, 1896, and was buried by the side of his wife in the family burying ground on the Nathan Ward place, near New Middleton, Tenn.

John Gardner Bransford's life sketch reads like a romance. He was descended from an old English family on his father's side, whose history extends back for centuries, first appearing in London. His mother was Jane Gardner, of Irish descent. He left his native home when very young, and went to Memphis, Tenn., where he worked a short time as a journeyman printer. He then went to Nashville where he worked at the same trade. Later he went to Smith County, Tenn., where he met and married Martha Marion Ward at the time already stated, and located in Carthage, Tenn., where he established a paper called the Carthage Casket. After a short time he moved to Lebanon, Tenn., and published a paper called The Lebanon Herald.

In 1850, he took the gold fever and left for California. A trip from Tennessee to California then and now are two very different propositions. He joined a party, and went by way of New Orleans. There he took shipping on board a sail vessel, sailed across the gulf to Mexico, the people of which country then had little friendly feeling for Americans, the Mexican war having recently ended. He made his way across Mexico, took shipping in a sail vessel from some point on the west coast of that country, and finally reached San Francisco, then a small village, in fact, little more than a roaring mining camp. He was 90 days making the trip, and spent 30 days out of sight of land. What a change has been wrought since then. In the present day one could easily girdle the earth twice in 90 days.

Mr. Bransford remained in California three years, a part of which time he was engaged in digging gold, and a part of the time he worked at the printer's trade, earning $10.00 per day. The country was wild, and the few people in it were wilder, and Mr. Bransford, of necessity, led a wild and romantic life, making many narrow escapes from death at the hands of Indians. He wore his hair extra long, and was known among his comrades as "Black-eyed Susan."

He returned in 1853, and settled down at New Middleton, where his family had resided during his absence. He entered the mercantile business with the Ward Brothers, the firm name being finally changed to Ward & Bransford. He so remained till the death of his wife in 1871. He then secured a position as Baggage Master and Express Messenger on the N. C. & St. L. R. R., with a run from Nashville to Lebanon, Tenn., in which business he continued for 10 years, when he went into the mercantile business in Lebanon, Tenn., at which he continued till the time of his death.

The children of John Gardner and Martha Marion Bransford are 3 in number, as follows:

Madison Peter was only in his fifth year when his father died in 1858, and by the death of some of his older brothers, and the marriage and removal of others, he became the mainstay of his mother in her declining years. He has spent his entire life in Morgan Co., Mo., except five years—1874 to '79—spent in California.

In 1881 he bought a farm 9 miles west of Versailles, the county-seat, and in 1902, the Rock Island Railroad Co. built a line from St. Louis to Kansas City. The road crossed his land, and a depot was located in his field. He platted a town site, and went to selling town lots. Thus was started the thriving railroad village of Stover, and Madison Peter Hughes became its founder.

5—Sarah Martin Hughes, a daughter of Little Berry Hughes, Sr., and his wife, Mary (Walker) Hughes, married William Allen. He was a brother of the Jane Allen that married Sarah Martin's brother, William Powell Hughes.

The information that I have been able to obtain in regard to this member of our family is meager in the extreme.

It appears that at some time after their marriage, which was in Smith Co., Tenn., they went to Guntersville, Alabama, where, I suppose they spent the remainder of their lives.

One of their daughters married a Mr. McFarlane, and after the Civil War that branch of the family moved to Missouri, and settled in Chillicothe, Livingston Co.

Two of the daughters married farmers of that county, and another married a Professor McVeigh, who was for several years principal of the schools of Gallatin, Davis Co., Mo. Another daughter, Mollie McFarlane, went to California, and the family appears to be lost to their relatives.

I regret to be compelled to dismiss this branch of our family with so cursory a notice. For the little information that I here give I am indebted wholly to my cousin, Mrs. Susan A. (Hughes) Helwig, of Trenton, Mo.

6—Mary Hughes, generally called Polly, a daughter of Little Berry Hughes, Sr., was born in Smith Co., Tenn., March 25, 1812, and died near Berry's Lick, Butler Co., Ky., on Feb. 2, 1909, almost 97 years old.

On October 22, 1829, she married John Hooker, a farmer and also a Baptist preacher. In 1848, they moved from Smith Co., Tenn., to Crittenden County, Ky., where they remained till 1852, living a while near Marion, a while near Cookville, and a part of the time at Dycusburg; and in December, 1852, moved to Butler Co., Ky., and settled near Berry's Lick, where Mr. Hooker died July 1, 1862, and where his widow continued to reside during the remainder of her life.

There were born to this marriage 7 children, all daughters, as follows:

His remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground at his father's old homestead, then the home of Nathan Ward.

He was born and spent his entire life in Smith Co., Tenn. He was a most excellent and upright man in all the relations of life. While young he became a member of the Baptist church, presumably at the Hickman church, of the congregation of which his older brother, William Powell Hughes, was long the able and eloquent pastor. When the doctrinal split over the question of predestination came, resulting in the most violent commotion in the congregation, and its final separation into two denominational bodies, the Primitive or Hardshell, and the Missionary Baptists, both William P. and John W. took the Missionary side of the dispute. John W. continued to be a faithful and useful member of that denomination to the hour of his death.

He was a prominent man of affairs in his community. He served as Deputy Sheriff a number of years, and had been elected to the office of Sheriff of Smith County, and had just entered upon the duties of that office only a few months before his death.

Early in life he suffered some financial reverses through no fault of his own, but he met his misfortunes with the same Christian and philosophical fortitude and moral courage that sustained and animated him amid all the trying vicissitudes of life.

He was born on his father's farm, received a collegiate education, and on May 9, 1838, he married Jane Penn Walker, a daughter of Thomas Walker, in Muhlenberg Co., Ky. They were cousins twice removed or third cousins, Jane's father being a first cousin to Gedeliah's mother.

Jane's mother was Mary Dillon, of Prince Edward County, Virginia, where she and Thomas Walker were united in marriage, and afterwards removed to Smith County, Tenn., where their daughter Jane was born Aug. 10, 1820.

In 1837, Thomas Walker moved to Muhlenberg Co., Ky. After the marriage of Gedeliah and Jane, they went to Smith Co., Tenn., and remained about six months, when they returned to Muhlenberg Co., Ky.

In October, 1842, Thomas Walker and his family, together with Gedeliah and Jane Hughes removed to Grundy Co., Mo., then on the frontier. There Gedeliah Hughes, in the midst of a wilderness, went to work to contribute his part in building up a prosperous community; and faithfully he did his work, spending the last nineteen years of his life in transforming the wilderness into happy homes for the posterity of himself and others. He died on Dec. 19, 1861. His faithful wife survived him almost exactly 48 years, dying Dec. 24, 1909, in the 90th year of her age.

2—Lela Austin Hughes married Erle Dill Winslow, of Fort Worth, Texas. He is chief clerk to the Vice President and General Manager of the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railroad. He is also Superintendent of Telegraph. They have one child, a son, named William Judson Winslow.

The following succinct but very graphic sketch of Henry Judson Hughes is from a recently published "History of Grundy County." It is a literal copy of the extract, as follows:

"Henry Judson Hughes, son of Gedaliah and Jane P. (Walker) Hughes, was born in Grundy County, Missouri, Jan. 30, 1858. He now lives at Trenton. He was married Dec. 30, 1879, to Alice Austin, daughter of James and Susan Austin. They have two children: Roy Ambler, born Nov. 5, 1880, unmarried; Lela Austin, born Nov. 7, 1883, now the wife of E. D. Winslow, of Fort Worth, Texas (she has one child, a son, William, born June 4, 1909); James Blaine was born April 8, 1891, died Sept. 24, 1904.

"Mr. Hughes lived on a farm until he was ten years old. He came to Trenton with his mother; at the age of thirteen he began working in a grocery store. He afterwards clerked for eight years for W. C. Benson. He was in the general merchandise business for eight years under the firm name of H. J. Hughes & Co., and in 1891 he engaged in the Real Estate and Farm Loan business, in which he is still engaged. Mr. Hughes does a large land business and has been the cause of many farmers from Iowa and Illinois coming to Grundy County. Some years his business runs as high as $400,000. In addition to his Real Estate and Loan business, Mr. Hughes owns and operates a fine breeding farm three miles northwest of Trenton which is known as Hughesdale. He breeds the Dual Purpose Shorthorn cattle, and Duroc Jersey hogs. This is the home of Rowena Second, the champion Dual Purpose cow at the St. Louis World's Fair. Hughesdale is now under the management of Roy A. Hughes.

"In 1907 Governor Folk appointed Mr. Hughes one of the Regents of the Maryville Normal school for a term of six years.

"Mr. Hughes is a Republican, a member of the First Baptist church, and was chairman of the building committee when their present church was erected on Elm Street. He is a Mason and an Odd Fellow."

The reader will note an error in the number of Mr. Hughes' children as stated in the above extract. It should be 3 children instead of 2. The names of the children are given correctly.

9—Susannah, the youngest child of Little Berry Hughes, Sr., and Mary (Walker) Hughes, married Henry Crawford Jones in Smith County, Tenn. She died early in life, leaving one child, a daughter, named Lucy Ann Jones, who died young and unmarried. After the death of Susannah, Mr. Jones, who was a most excellent man, married Winnie Duncan, a daughter of John Duncan, and moved to Butler Co., Ky., and settled near Berry's Lick. He died many years ago.

This closes the sketch of Little Berry Hughes, Sr., and his 9 children.

MAJ. JOHN POINS PATTON

CHAPTER VI.

Mary Hughes.

2—Mary or Polly Hughes, daughter of Powell Hughes, and sister of Little Berry Hughes, Sr., married John Lankford in Prince Edward Co., Virginia; and about the year 1828, they moved to Smith County, Tenn., and later moved to Wilson Co., Tenn., and presumably by successive moves, became separated from the family, and disappeared. So far as I have been able to learn, nothing has been heard from them in a generation.

Edith Hughes.

3—Edith Hughes, third child of Powell-Hughes, as the reader has already learned, married her cousin John or Jack Hughes in Prince Edward County, Virginia. They moved to Smith County, Tenn., about the year 1828. They probably came in the same party with John Lankford. They remained in Smith County till about the year 1845, when they moved to Crittenden Co., Ky., and settled about 6 or 8 miles west of Marion, the county-seat, where they both died between 1855 and 1860. The exact dates of their deaths have not been learned. They were both very old at the time of their deaths.

Their children were 4 in number, as follows:

- | | |
|----------|--------------|
| a—Susan. | c—Elizabeth. |
| b—Nancy. | d—Leander. |

The above is correct as to the number and names, but they may not be arranged exactly according to their respective ages. It is certain, however, that Susan was the oldest.

a—Susan Hughes, more frequently called Suky, was born Jan. 11, 1804. She married Josiah Davidson in Prince Edward Co., Virginia, Dec. 31, 1824. Mr. Davidson was born Aug. 24, 1802, and died in 1884 or '85. Susan died about 1895. They moved to Smith Co., Tenn., about 1828, and from Smith to Crittenden Co., Ky., about 1845, where the remainder of their lives was passed. Their children were 9 in number, as follows:

- 1—Elizabeth died young and unmarried.
- 2—John Henry, born in October, 1827.
- 3—Nancy Powell, born Sept. 8, 1830.
- 4—Samuel Anderson, born in May, 1833.
- 5—Leroy, born in 1835.
- 6—Joseph Archibald, born in September, 1837.
- 7—Edith Jane, born in August, 1841.
- 8—Benjamin Franklin, born May 11, 1844.
- 9—William Brookshire, born in 1847.

2—John Henry Davidson married Sarah Jane Hughes, a daughter of Leander Hughes, Sr., about the year 1852. They both died in Crittenden Co., Ky., near the year 1900. They were cousins once removed. Their children were 4, as follows:

- | | |
|------------|-------------------|
| a—Robert. | c—Mattie. |
| b—Carroll. | d—Francis Marion. |

a—Robert Davidson went west in 1878. If he is married, the name of his wife is not known to me.

b—Carroll Davidson died unmarried in the latter part of the '70's.

c—Mattie married Lucien Larue, a son of W. Jefferson Larue.

d—Francis Marion Davidson married Minnie Allen, a daughter of Eugene Allen.

3—Nancy Powell Davidson, daughter of Josiah and Susan Davidson, married Seth Wade Hughes, a carpenter and builder, a son of Leander Hughes, Sr. They are cousins once removed. Address, Harrisburg, Illinois. Their children will be given under the head of Seth Wade Hughes.

4—Samuel Anderson Davidson married Sarah Riley. He is a farmer. Address, not known. I am not sure that he is living. He served in the 48th Illinois Infantry in the Civil War.

5—Leroy Davidson, was a farmer. He served in the 48th Illinois Infantry in the Civil War. He was twice married. His first wife was Jemima Threlkeld and his second was Paulina Franklin. He died about or a little prior to 1890.

6—Joseph Archibald Davidson married Lucy Franklin, a daughter of Anthony Franklin. He was a farmer, merchant and tobacco dealer. He died in February, 1909. His widow's address is Levias, Ky. Their children's names are not fully known. His oldest son, Grant, married Lola Pond. His oldest daughter, Elizabeth, married David W. Carter. His daughter Sallie married her cousin, Thomas Davidson, a son of Samuel A. Davidson. He had twin sons generally called Buckner and Terrell, but I do not know their full names. He had a daughter named Ida that I think married a Mr. Stevens. Another daughter married Gideon Taylor.

7—Edith Jane Davidson married Hale Franklin, a farmer, now retired, address, Marion, Ky.

8—Benjamin Franklin Davidson is a farmer and carpenter. He served in the 3rd Kentucky Cavalry from March, 1864, to the close of the war, was with Sherman's army all of that time. He has been twice married. He first married Edna Threlkeld. His second wife was Elizabeth Wilson. His present address is Soldiers' Home, Danville, Illinois.

9—William Brookshire Davidson married Harriet Alison, a daughter of Berry Alison. I think his present address is Marion, Ky.

Of the above named 9 children of Josiah and Susan (Hughes) Davidson, the following are known to be dead: Elizabeth, John Henry, Leroy, and Joseph Archibald. So far as the writer knows, the others are all living.

b—Nancy Hughes, daughter of Jack and Edith Hughes, married Joseph Duncan, a farmer, in Smith County, Tenn.

They both died in Illinois many years ago. Their children were 3 in number, as follows:

1—John.

2—Edith Powell.

3—Leander.

1—John Duncan enlisted in the 48th Illinois Infantry in the Civil War, and died at home on sick furlough, in Crittenden Co., Ky., only a few months after his enlistment. He never married.

2—Edith Powell married, but I do not know the name of her husband. They lived in Illinois.

3—Leander Duncan was twice married. He first married Mollie Beard in Crittenden Co., Ky. After her death, which occurred in Illinois, he married again, but I am not informed as to the name of his second wife. He died about the year 1880.

c—Elizabeth Hughes, a daughter of Jack and Edith Hughes, married Richard Powell Hughes, a son of Leander Hughes, Sr., a farmer, in Smith County, Tenn. They were first cousins. She died in Crittenden Co., Ky., about 1858 or '59. Their children will be given in the sketch of Richard Powell Hughes.

d—Leander Hughes, son of Jack and Edith Hughes, never married. He enlisted for the Mexican War, and died at Memphis, Tenn., while in the service.

Leander Hughes, Sr.

4—My grand-father Leander Hughes, Sr., the fourth child of Powell Hughes, Sr., and his wife Elizabeth (Coleman) Hughes, was born as has already been seen in Prince Edward County, Virginia. He moved to Smith County, Tennessee, in 1810, and settled on the Dry Fork of Mulherrin's Creek, just across the creek from his brother Little Berry Hughes, Sr., about one mile from New Middleton. The place is now the property and the home of Lafayette Bradford.

There he spent the remainder of his life. He died in the latter part of the year 1836. He was a farmer all his life. He also built and operated a water mill on the little creek. During his life he accumulated a comfortable competency, but was not rich. He owned, at the time of his death, two or three tracts of land, amounting to several hundred acres, was out of debt, and owned 4 slaves, Uncle Bill, Aunt Grace, and two lusty boys, between fifteen and twenty years old, named respectively Zack and Patrick.

My grand-father was three times married. His first wife was Elizabeth Fretwell, whom he married in Prince Edward Co., Virginia. She died in Smith Co., Tenn., about the year 1815. He afterwards married Rebecca Bell. She died about 1827 or '28, and he soon afterwards married Martha Paris, a daughter of James Paris.

The Hughes family has long been noted as a prolific one, but my grand-father broke all records with an even score of children, all of whom lived to be grown people, and 18 of them married and reared families. They were as follows:

First wife:

- | | |
|-------------------|---------------------|
| 1—Gideon. | 5—Julia. |
| 2—Richard Powell. | 6—Caroline. |
| 3—Gillie. | 7—Leander. |
| 4—Philadelphia. | 8—Leonard Fretwell. |

Second wife:

- | | |
|-------------------------|----------------------|
| 9—John James—my father. | 13—Ira Bell. |
| 10—Little Berry. | 14—Seth Wade. |
| 11—Elizabeth. | 15—Foley Brookshire. |
| 12—William. | 16—Thomas Henry. |

Third wife:

- | | |
|----------------|-----------------|
| 17—Sarah Jane. | 19—Jesse Paris. |
| 18—Nancy Ann. | 20—Susan Lea. |

After the death of my grand-father, his third wife married Reuben Baird, and there were born of this marriage 4 children, as follows:

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------|
| 1—Mary Elizabeth. | 3—Martha Frances. |
| 2—Hannah Prowell. | 4—Reuben. |

Thus we see that the first wife was the mother of 8, the second of 8, and the third was the mother of 4 Hughes, and 4 Baird children, which made her 8.

Of the first wife's children the first 3 or 4 were born in Prince Edward Co., Virginia. All the others were born in Smith Co., Tenn.

1—Gideon Hughes married Elizabeth Paris, a daughter of Obadiah Paris, Sr. Gideon was a farmer. He died in Smith County, Tenn., early in life, leaving 4 children, all sons, as follows:

He is a farmer, but has been a produce dealer during a part of his life. He has lived for several years near Chestnut Mound, Tenn., which is his address. He has but 1 child, a daughter, named Nancy or Nannie, who married Samuel McKinney, a farmer.

The address of the whole family is Chestnut Mound, Tenn.

b—Obadiah Hughes was born in Smith Co., Tenn. When a young man he spent a year or two in Crittenden Co., Ky., returning to Smith County in September, 1851. He was then unmarried. Again in time of the Civil War, and after his marriage he lived a while in Crittenden Co. About the close of the Civil War he settled down on a farm on Hickman's Creek at the mouth of Pigg's branch, where he spent the remainder of his life. He died many years ago. A few years prior to the Civil War he married Lucy Jane Jeffreys. Their children were 4, as follows:

|-----------|------------|
| 1—Andrew. | 3—William. |
| 2—Robert. | 4—Bettie. |

1—Andrew married a daughter of Daniel Agee, first name not known.

2—Robert first married a daughter of Samuel Johnson, first name not known. She is dead, and Robert has married again; name of second wife not known.

3—William died while a boy. 4—Bettie is unmarried.

c—Leander, third son of Giden and Elizabeth (Paris) Hughes, married Mary Pigg, a daughter of William and Martha (Duncan) Pigg, and in 1860, moved to Western Missouri, and nothing is known of his descendants. It is said that he died about 1890, and that his family, or a part of them, moved to Texas.

d—Lemuel Fretwell Hughes, fourth and youngest child of Gideon and Elizabeth (Paris) Hughes, was born in Smith Co., Tenn., Jan. 13, 1834. On Sept. 2, 1852, he married Julia Ann Ashley, a daughter of William Ashley. He has always been a farmer. He remained in Smith Co., Tenn., till 1857, when he moved to Crittenden Co., Ky. He remained in the last named county till 1874, when he moved to Hopkins Co., Ky., where he still resides. His address is Manitou, Ky. His children are 5, as follows:

She died, and he afterwards married Mrs. Dedie Mathews, a widow, whose first name was Jacobs. He has followed various pursuits, has been a farmer, a grocer's clerk, &c. His present address is Blodgett, Missouri. There have been no children of the second marriage. The first wife was the mother of 1 child, a daughter, named Willie, who, I think, is unmarried.

2—James Obadiah Hughes has been twice married. His first wife was Rebecca Alexander. His second was Henrietta Jones. His address is Taylor's Mines, Ky. There were no children of the first marriage. Of the second there are 8, as follows:

2—Richard Powell Hughes, second child of Leander and Elizabeth (Fretwell) Hughes, married his cousin Elizabeth, a daughter of Jack and Edith Hughes, in Smith Co., Tenn., a little prior to the year 1840. About 1845 he moved to Crittenden Co., Ky., where Elizabeth died about the year 1858 or '59. In 1860 he married Sarah James, a sister of L. H. James, of Marion, Ky. He later moved to Illinois, where his second wife died, and he afterwards married a Mrs. Shoemaker, a widow. He was always a farmer. He died some time near the year 1880. CHAPTER VIII.

9—John James Hughes, the writer's father, oldest son of Leander Hughes, Sr., and his second wife, Rebecca (Bell) Hughes, was born at the parental home in Smith Co., Tenn., June 15, 1817. He died at his home about one mile south of Marion, Ky., on the Princeton road, on the night of March 10, 1901, lacking from that date to June 15 of being 84 years old. On Feb. 23, 1843, he married Susan or Susannah Gass, a daughter of Joseph and Nancy (Boze) Gass, in Smith Co., Tenn. She was born in Smith Co., Tenn., Sept. 9, 1822. Father was a farmer, carpenter, millwright and miller and for a short time a merchant. The carpenter's trade was his specialty.

At the time of their marriage my parents settled on a farm on what is known as Paris Branch, father having purchased the farm from his brother, Richard Powell Hughes. In 1848, he sold this place, and moved across the Caney Fork, and built a house on the farm of his father-in-law, to be used as a country store, and in that house he sold goods, mainly groceries, and at the same time ran a farm, and, also, a ferry across Caney Fork, from November, 1849, to March, 1851, when he sold out his stock of goods at public auction, and moved to Crittenden Co., Ky. He rented a small two-story log house with a clearing of two acres entirely surrounded by woods on all sides. The place was about one-half mile east of Marion on the Providence road. It is now in the suburbs of Marion. The place then belonged to John Swansey. The house completely disappeared more than 50 years ago.

The family remained there till the following September (1851) when both my parents became dissatisfied and moved back to Smith Co., Tenn., and my father bought a small farm, cut off from my grand-father Gass' possessions, the part so purchased including the store-house in which father had sold goods a short time before, and which he fitted up for a residence. Here he remained, working the little farm and conducting the ferry, and plying his trade as a carpenter, all with the help of a hired man, till the fall of 1852, when he bought from his nephew, Americus Paris, a half interest in the water mill, at that time generally known as Baker's mill, George Baker being the owner of the other half-interest, which my father bought a year or so later. The entire purchase included about 18 acres of land. In March, 1856, the mill was swept away in a freshet. It was the third or fourth mill that had been washed away from that site. Father rebuilt, giving the new building a solid stone foundation. This mill stood for about 50 years. It was on Mulherrin's Creek about one mile above its mouth. In 1860, my father sold his mill and small tract of land to John and Robert Webb, and in March of that year, moved again to Crittenden Co., Ky., and bought a farm of 150 acres from Jesse Baird, and settled upon it. In 1865 he bought an adjoining farm of about the same area from the widow Amy Collins. These two farms lie about two miles south-east of Marion, on the old Princeton, or Piney Fork road. This property has been cut up into several tracts and is owned by different parties, my brother, Winfield Scott Hughes, owning and occupying the part that includes the buildings where my father first settled.

In 1873, my father, together with his son Ira and son-in-law Thos. N. James, bought a farm of about 200 acres from Rev. Isaac McMurry, on the Princeton road about $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles south from the court-house at Marion. Father afterwards bought out the other two interests.

On that farm my parents spent the remainder of their lives. My Mother died there on Sunday, July 16, 1899, and father on the night of Sunday, March 10, 1901. The farm now belongs to A. J. Baker.

Their children were 11, as follows:

a—William Joseph Leander Hughes was born in Smith Co., Tenn., March 23, 1844. As this is my own sketch I shall write in the first person.

In March, 1860, my father moved to Crittenden Co., Ky., and of course, took me with him. On March 23, 1864, my 20th birthday, I enlisted in Louisville, Ky., in Co. "C," 3rd Ky. Veteran Volunteer Cavalry, and was with Sherman's army to the close of the war. I was mustered for discharge at Lexington, North Carolina, July 15, 1865, and returned to Louisville, Ky., via Fortress Monroe and Baltimore, and was discharged at Louisville, Aug. 2, 1865, and returned home immediately.

During the two following years I worked on my father's farm, teaching three months in the fall of each year.

During the years 1868 and '69, I attended school at the Masonic Academy at New Middleton, Tenn. I returned home in January, 1870, and during that year and 1871, I again worked on my father's farm, teaching in the fall. The public school term had by this time been extended to five months. On May 8, 1872, I married Malinda Ann Rice, a daughter of Watson Buchanan Rice and his wife, Susan (Wheeler) Rice. Watson B. Rice was a son of Patrick Henry Rice, who was either a first or second cousin to Rev. Nathan L. Rice, D. D., the Presbyterian divine that engaged in the memorable doctrinal debate with Dr. Alexander Campbell in the old Main Street Christian Church in Lexington, Ky., in 1837. Henry Clay presided as Moderator at that debate.

Patrick Henry Rice's children appear to have been 4, as follows:

- 1—Eliza B., born Sept. 26, 1809, and died unmarried.

2—Thurza E. Rice, birth date not known, died unmarried.

3—Watson Buchanan Rice, born Feb. 9, 1814. Died in 1851.

4—Amelia Russell Rice, born Feb. 8, 1816, and died May 31, 1885.

4—Amelia R. Rice married Eleazer Turner Williamson, who was born July 13, 1817. They married Aug. 27, 1839. Mr. Williamson lived in Kentucky till about 1852, when he moved to Hillsboro, Ills., where he remained till 1873. He then went to Iowa, and remained ten years, thence to Beadle Co., South Dakota, and after a residence there of 5 years, he went to Nebraska, where he died April 2, 1896.

The children of this marriage were as follows:

1—John H., born May 23, 1840, died Nov. 20, 1857.

2—Samuel F., born Jan. 20, 1842, died June 19, 1908.

3—Andrew M., born Oct. 6, 1843, died April 14, 1908.

4—Joseph F., born March 13, 1845, died April 20, 1855.

5—James H., born Dec. 24, 1846. Address, Shenandoah, Iowa.

6—Mary E., born April 15, 1849, died Jan. 6, 1854.

7—Watson Rice Williamson, born June 14, 1851. Address, West Union, Iowa.

Now, to return to Watson B. and Susan (Wheeler) Rice. I regret that I have not been able to obtain the name of Susan Wheeler's parents. She had a sister Jane Wheeler, that married Thomas Hughes, not related to us, who lived on a fine farm about 4 miles from Fredonia on the road to Princeton, Ky. I think the farm is still the property of his sons James and Frank. Mrs. Rice had a brother, Earl Wheeler, that went into the Confederate army, and nothing definite is known of his fate. He never married. She had another brother, whose first name I do not know. He had a son, Thomas Wheeler, that married a Miss Crouch, near Dycusburg, Ky. I think Mrs. Rice's mother was a Cruce.

The children of Watson B. and Susan Rice, that survived the age of early childhood, were 5, as follows:

- | | |
|------------------|----------------|
| 1—Mary Jane. | 3—Malinda Ann. |
| 2—Patrick Henry. | 4—John Earle. |
| 5—Susan. | |

1—Mary Jane Rice was born March 24, 1837, and died March 20, 1898. She married Willis Smith Dollins Nov. 28, 1855. Mr. Dollins was born June 17, 1832, and died in Crittenden Co., Ky., in March, 1871, while preparing to move to Texas. He was an industrious and successful farmer. The children of this marriage were 5, as follows:

- | | |
|------------------|------------|
| a—Isabel. | c—Charles. |
| b—Thomas Willis. | d—Nellie. |
| e—Robert Earl. | |

a—Isabel, always called Bell, died unmarried at the age of about 22.

b—Thomas Willis Dollins is unmarried. At latest advices he was somewhere in the State of Washington.

c—Charles died unmarried just after reaching the age of manhood.

d—Nellie is not married. Address, Marion, Ky.

e—Robert Earl Dollins was born March 1, 1869. On Feb. 15, 1888, he married Laura Ann Wilson, who was born Nov. 26, 1866. She is a daughter of Robert Lysander Wilson, who was born April 13, 1836. Her mother was George Ann Travis, a daughter of Daniel Travis, and was born Aug. 1, 1846. Robert Lysander Wilson and his wife George Ann married Jan. 11, 1866. George Ann's father, Daniel Travis, was born Aug. 13, 1810. Robert L. Wilson's father was Francis Travis Wilson, born Feb. 19, 1803. Robert E. and George Ann Dollins have 8 children, as follows:

- 1—Nonie, born Aug. 15, 1891.
- 2—Willis Lysander, born Jan. 26, 1896.
- 3—Fred, born April 8, 1897.

- 7—Robert Fulton, born March 12, 1906.
- 8—George Ann, born Oct. 31, 1908.

2—Patrick Henry Rice married Sarah McCarty in 1865. He was a farmer. He died in March, 1870, leaving 2 children, as follows:

a—William Watson. b—Mary Jane.

a—William Watson Rice was born Sept. 16, 1866. He married Mrs. Maggie Henson, widow of Samuel Henson, and a daughter of William H. Cardin. She was born March 11, 1863. There was a daughter of her first marriage, named Emma Pearl Henson, that married William Thomas James, a nephew of the writer. The children of William Watson Rice and his wife, Maggie, are as follows:

1—Margaret, born Sept. 9, 1891.

2—Mary Alice, born in 1892, and died Jan. 29, 1896.

3—William Henry, born Sept. 21, 1894.

4—Ollie James, born Sept. 8, 1896.

5—William Crawford, born June 14, 1899.

6—Sarah Catharine, born Aug. 2, 1902.

7—Allen Daughtry, born Aug. 1, 1902.

The above record contains all the names sent me by W. W. Rice; but it appears to me that there is one more child.

b—Mary Jane Rice was born Jan. 11, 1868. On June 12, 1898, she married William Cooper Robinson in Paducah, Ky. Mr. Robinson was born Nov. 23, 1870. His paternal grand-father was named Michael Robinson, and was born in Tennessee. His wife was Lucinda Lowery. His son, Daniel Tucker Robinson, was born in Sumner Co., Tenn., Jan. 7, 1842. The last named was the father of William Cooper Robinson, the subject of this sketch. William Cooper's mother was Anna Valeria Hammons, a daughter of Cooper Bennett Hammons, who was born in Georgia April 1, 1814. Anna V. married Daniel T. Robinson Dec. 31, 1868, in Saline Co., Ills. Their children were 7, as follows:

1—Cordia Lary, born Oct. 29, 1869, in Carmi, Ills.

2—William Cooper, born Nov. 23, 1870, in Gallatin Co., Ills.

3—Allan Floyd, born July 31, 1872, in Gallatin Co., Ills.

4—Maggie May, born Aug. 26, 1875, in Hamilton Co., Ills., and died Jan. 25, 1896.

5—Mary Ellen, born Feb. 24, 1878, in Hamilton Co., Ills., died May 30, 1902.

6—Eva Ann, born Oct. 10, 1879, in Dahlgreen, Ills.

William Cooper Robinson and his wife, Mary Jane, always called Jennie, reside at Nashville, Tenn., address R. F. D. 7, Station B. Mr. Robinson is in the employ of the T. C. railroad. They have 1 child, a son, named Floyd Arthur Robinson, born at Franklin, Ky., March 21, 1899.

3—Malinda Ann Rice, was born Nov. 14, 1844, and died in Marion, Ky., Nov. 30, 1880. As already stated she became my wife May 8, 1872. Her only child will be mentioned later.

4—John Earl Rice died unmarried in Marion, Ky., in August, 1879.

5—Susan Rice died unmarried in December, 1867.

After my marriage in 1872, I settled down on a tract of land that I had purchased in the woods with a small clearing and a log cabin on it, and went to work, and pretty laborious work it was, to transform that piece of wilderness into a home. The place is now the property and home of Obadiah Hunt. After one year, the Sheriff of the county, James H. Cameron, offered to appoint me as his deputy on condition that I would assume the entire duties of the office. I accepted. That was in April, 1873. In June, 1874, the Sheriff resigned. I meantime, at the solicitation of my friends, had become a candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk, to which office I was elected on the first Monday in August, 1874, for a term of six years, and entered upon the duties of the office the following Monday. During the term my health became impaired, and I declined to make the race for a second term.

My wife died on Nov. 30, after my retirement from office in August, 1880; and a little more than a year later, on Dec. 19, 1881, I married Willie Bell Yelton, a daughter of John Pinkney and Mary Yelton, of New Middleton, Tenn. John Pinkney Yelton's father was Charles Henson Yelton, who was reared in Lynchburg, Va. His mother's maiden name was Susan Rodgers, also reared in Virginia.

The children of Charles Henson and Susan Yelton were 9, as follows:

- | | |
|------------------|-------------------|
| 1—William. | 5—Benjamin. |
| 2—Barnett Cash. | 6—Wilbourn Swift. |
| 3—Charles Lewis. | 7—Lydia. |
| 4—John Pinkney. | 8—Sallie. |
| 9—Mary. | |

It is not probable that the above arrangement, taken as a whole, is in the order of the ages of the members of this family, though, if I understand the facts, the sons are in the order of their ages, and the daughters in the order of theirs.

I am not advised as to the marriage connections of any except that of my father-in-law, John Pinkney, who married Mary Lea, a daughter of John and Rebecca Lea.

John Pinkney Yelton has been a very successful farmer and live stock dealer. For a long number of years his specialty was buying and driving horses and mules to the Southern states, from which business he derived a good profit. He once held the office of County Court Clerk of Smith County, Tenn. His wife died in 1897, since which time he has not been regularly engaged in any business. He makes his home with his son-in-law, James W. Turner, at Willett, Macon County, Tenn. He is 88 years old. His children have been 7, as follows:

- | | |
|---------------------|--------------------|
| a—Robert Gray. | d—Martha Miranda. |
| b—Benjamin Jackson. | e—Margaret Luella. |
| c—Mary Lea. | f—Jennie Poteet. |
| g—Willie Bell. | |

a—Robert Gray Yelton married Letitia Tuggle. He is a very successful farmer. He lives on an excellent farm about 3 miles east of Lebanon, Tenn. The children of this marriage have been 4, as follows:

1—Nora, married Joseph Barbee.

2—Hueskah, married, and soon after died. I once knew the name of his wife, but I have forgotten it.

3—I am not advised as to Baxter.

4—Eulalia, is married, but I have not the name of her husband. I think she lives in St. Louis, Mo.

b and e—Benjamin Jackson and Margaret Luella died in childhood.

c—Mary Lea Yelton, married James Wilson Turner. He has been a farmer and merchant. He now, I think runs a flouring mill at Willett, Tenn. The children of this marriage are 2, as follows:

1—Edward Exum Turner, married Bessie Jones.

2—Gray Yelton Turner, married Rebecca Davis.

d—Martha Miranda Yelton, was born Dec. 14, 1856. On Dec. 23, 1873, she married James Francis Turner, who was born Jan. 28, 1854. James F. and James W. are not related. James F. Turner was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was also a very able educator. He and his wife taught together, and she taught after his death. He died Dec. 30, 1885. Mrs. Turner's address is Gordonsville, Tenn., where for a number of years, she held the position of postmistress. The children of this marriage were 6, as follows:

1—James Frances.

4—Wilbur Foss.

2—John Hugh.

5—Bessie Lee.

3—Mary C.

6—Martha Elsie.

1—James Frances Turner, Jr., was born Jan. 31, 1875. On Jan. 10, 1900, he married Cora Coulson. Their children are 3, as follows:

a—Cora Frances, born Nov. 8, 1903.

2—John Hugh Turner was born March 24, 1876. On Nov. 14, 1907, he married Ruby Urquhart, of Mobile. Of this marriage there is 1 child, named Virginia. John Hugh is a lawyer, lives in Nashville, Tenn., where he has a large and lucrative practice.

JOHN FRANKLIN SWOOPÉ

3—Mary C. Turner, generally called Mamie, was born Jan. 13, 1878. On June 19, 1907, she married Albert Henry Key. No children reported.

4—Wilbur Foss Turner was born June 15, 1880, and died Oct. 18, 1886.

5—Bessie Lee Turner was born Aug. 29, 1882, and died Nov. 15, 1883.

6—Martha Elsie Turner was born Sept. 12, 1884. On Sept. 6, 1910, she was married to James Frederick Gwaltney, a son of John Gwaltney. He is postmaster at Gordonsville, Tenn.

f—Jennie Poteet Yelton married James W. Clarke, a lawyer of Liberty, Tenn. In 1884, they moved to Great Bend, Kansas, where Mr. Clarke built up a splendid practice. He has served two or three terms as County Attorney of Barton County. Jennie died in 1897. Mr. Clarke has married again.

g—Willie Bell was married to me Dec. 19, 1881. Soon after my marriage with my second wife I engaged in the retail grocery business, later combining with it shoes, hats and hardware. In 1885, I sold out my business and went to Barton Co., Kansas, where I remained till November, 1891, when I moved to Arkansas City, Cowley Co., Kansas, where I remained one year; and in November, 1892, returned to Crittenden Co., Ky., arriving at Marion November 20. During my stay in Kansas I was engaged in farming and gardening. On my return to Kentucky I engaged in the same business, but taught a term in 1896, and again in 1898. My second wife died at Marion, Ky., Oct. 10, 1896.

In December, 1898, I received an appointment as Storekeeper-Gauger in the U. S. Internal Revenue service for the Second Revenue district of Kentucky. I went on duty under my first assignment at Worsham's distillery, now Kraver's, at Henderson on Jan. 1st, 1899. I have been continuously in the service ever since. The end of the present year (It is now November, 1910,) will complete my twelfth year.

On February 20, 1900, I married Mary Louise Swoope (pronounced Swope). She was born Jan. 12, 1864. She is a daughter of George William and Elizabeth Love (Patton) Swoope. Her father was a lawyer of marked ability. He was at his best as a criminal lawyer, but was good in all the departments of the legal practice. He was a Democrat, but was not a politician. I have not been informed of but two races that he ever made for office, in both of which he was opposed by men of his own political faith. One was for District Prosecuting Attorney, in which he was defeated. The other was for the State Senate in which he was elected. He was born at Falmouth, Pendleton Co., Ky., August 6, 1834, and died at the City Hospital in Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 25, 1903. His father was Samuel Franklin Swoope, who was born in Bourbon Co., Ky., March 9, 1809, and about 1833 he moved to Falmouth, Ky., and entered upon the practice of the law, and was soon regarded as one of the ablest lawyers in his section. He represented Pendleton County in the lower house of the legislature three terms, and served one term in the State Senate. He represented the old Tenth Kentucky district in the lower House of Congress two terms, from 1855 to 1859. He was elected as an American Party man or Know-Nothing. During the Civil War he was an outspoken Union man. He died soon after the close of the Civil War. His wife was Louisa Cordelia Boston. Their children were 13, as follows:

1—Mary Catharine married William Field, a lawyer. She lives in St. Louis. Mr. Field has been dead many years.

2—George William married Elizabeth Love Patton.

3—Mildred died in childhood.

4—Elizabeth Frances died unmarried.

5—Henrietta Cordelia died unmarried.

6—Martha Ann married Ashel Clark.

7—Charles Temple married Lucy Abernathy. He was a commissioned officer in the Union army.

8—Etha Linda married William N. Maull, address 802, Washington St., Louisville, Ky.

9—Douglas Patterson is not married. Address, Edwardsville, Mo.

10—Sydney died in childhood.

11—Alva married Frank Watkins.

12—Henry died in childhood.

13—Edgar died when 2 or 3 years old.

My wife's mother, who before her marriage, was Elizabeth Love Patton, is a daughter of Major John Poinc Patton, whose wife was Julia Ann Anderson, a daughter of Claiborn and Elizabeth (Knight) Anderson. All these people lived in Mason Co., Ky. Major Patton's children were 3, as follows:

1—Thomas Claiborn. 2—Amanda.

3—Elizabeth Love.

1—Thomas Claiborn Patton died when 18 months old.

2—Amanda Patton married John L. Chiles. Her present address is Falmouth, Ky. Her husband died about 40 years ago.

3—Elizabeth Love Patton, as already twice stated, married George William Swoope. She lives with me and my wife at 1210, St. Ann St., Owensboro, Ky. There were born to her marriage with George W. Swoope, 4 children, as follows:

1—Mary Louise, my wife.

2—John Franklin, always called Jack, address, Evansville, Ind., R. F. D. No. 11, Park Heights. He is in the employ of the L. & N. R. R.

3—Amanda Etha, died at the age of 17.

4—George William died from a kick by a horse when about 18 months old.

My children have been 6, as follows:

First wife: 1—Maude.

Second wife:

2—Roy Yelton.

4—Claude.

3—Earl.

5—Earl Claude.

Third wife:

6—Mildred Leander Swoope.

1—Maude Hughes is not married. She has lived in Nashville several years. She works at the business of stenographer, typewriter and bookkeeper. Her address is Girls' Christian Home, 131, Fifth Avenue North, Nashville, Tenn. She is an active and a consistent member of the Baptist church, and a Sunday School teacher.

2—Roy Yelton Hughes was born in Marion, Ky., Sept. 19, 1882. On his 25th birthday, Sept. 19, 1907, he married Emma Elizabeth Hoffman, of New Ulm, Minn. She was born in Todd Co., Minn., Jan. 1, 1884. She is a daughter of John Louis Hoffman, who was born in Virginia May 26, 1855, but spent his earliest boyhood days in Baltimore, Maryland. When only about 7 years old he, with his parents, passed through the terrible ordeal of the Indian massacre at and around New Ulm in 1862. Mr. Hoffman's family took refuge in old Fort Ridgely, 19 miles north of New Ulm during that awful holocaust, and although the fort was almost shot to pieces, young Hoffman, with his father's family, escaped entirely uninjured.

On Sept. 25, 1876, John Louis Hoffman married Emma Mary Steinbach in New Ulm, Brown Co., Minn. Mrs. Hoffman was born at Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, February 16, 1856.

To this union have been born 14 children, of whom 13 are living, 7 sons and 6 daughters. Roy's wife, Emma Elizabeth, is one of the number. The family names of both of Emma's parents indicate German descent, and Emma is well versed in the language of that race. She speaks and writes German and English with equal fluency.

Roy is a very capable electrician, and works at that business, but has followed other pursuits. For a considerable time he traveled for the International Correspondence School at Scranton, Penn., during which time he traveled all over the Upper Mississippi and Missouri River country, with headquarters at different places. He has given considerable attention to invention. He and his brother-in-law, Mr. Hoffman, have recently patented an automatic fire-alarm, and also what is known as the Hughes-Hoffman Key-ring pocket lock, for travelers. It can be manipulated only from the inside. Roy's address is Aberdeen, South Dakota.

The children of this marriage have been 2, as follows:

a—Yelton Leander, who was born at New Ulm, Minn., Nov. 4, 1908, and died at St. Luke's hospital in Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 20, 1909.

b—Edward John Hughes was born in Aberdeen, South Dakota, April 26, 1910.

3—Earl Hughes was born in Marion, Ky., March 9, 1884, and died October 22, 1884.

4—Claud was born at Pawnee Rock, Kansas, Sept. 15, 1885, and died Sept. 17, 1886.

5—Earl Claud was born Oct. 2, 1887, and died Aug. 27, 1888.

6—Mildred Leander Swoope Hughes was born at 105, Maple Street, Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 12, 1901. She is in school, in the 4th grade, a good little student.

In response to a letter that I recently addressed to Capt. W. T. Ellis, an ex-member of Congress, and who for more than thirty years has ranked among the ablest members of the Owensboro bar, I received the following reply:

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 3, 1910.

Hon. W. J. L. Hughes,

Owensboro, Ky.

My Dear Friend:

In answer to your letter of yesterday will say I was well acquainted with your wife's father, Honorable George William Swoope. I knew him for thirty-five years prior to the date of his death and was intimately associated with him at the Owensboro bar and had ample opportunity to know him, as a lawyer, a citizen and neighbor.

George W. Swoope was in his younger life a remarkably handsome and a highly cultured and accomplished man. He was a natural lawyer, and although never a diligent student, he was one of the best practitioners of law I ever knew.

When I came to the bar in 1870 Mr. Swoope was in full practice; he was on one side or the other of every important civil suit, not only in the Daviess Circuit Court, but in the various courts of this Judicial district. As a criminal lawyer he had no superior and as a result of his skill and personal popularity he had a monopoly of the criminal practice. He was an orator of first-class ability. I have heard him deliver some of the most magnificent addresses to juries that I ever heard any lawyer deliver. If Mr. Swoope had applied himself diligently and had husbanded his resources he would have died a very rich man.

One of the most brilliant races ever made in this Judicial district was the race he made for Commonwealth's Attorney in 1867. He canvassed the district thoroughly, and although his opponent was a distinguished Confederate soldier, and although the district was overwhelmingly Southern in its sympathies, Mr. Swoope ran a remarkable race. His speeches throughout that campaign were not only an able presentation of the grounds on which he based his claim for election, but were a thorough and accurate discussion of the political issues then before the country. Mr. Swoope was a strong Southern sympathizer during the Civil War, though he was never in the army, and his discussion of the hardships to which Southern sympathizers who remained at home were subjected during the Civil War and the espionage which was set about them, was never so graphically described or thrillingly told either before or since that day.

One of the most exciting races in which Mr. Swoope was a candidate was his race for the State Senate, in which race his opponent was the Honorable Edwin Hawes, a man of great personal popularity and large family influences. The Senatorial district in which Mr. Swoope was a candidate was then composed of the counties of Daviess and Hancock. No race was ever made which attracted so much public attention not only in the Senatorial district, but throughout the State. Mr. Swoope, although running against one of the best known, most influential and popular citizens of the district, was elected by a handsome majority. His services in the State Senate were alike honorable to himself and his district. He was a leader in the State Senate from the day he took his seat in that body to the last day of his services there.

After his race for the Senate he was never again a candidate for a political office, but confined himself to the practice of his profession.

In the courthouse Mr. Swoope was the most courteous, polite and affable lawyer who ever appeared at the Owensboro bar. His bearing toward the court and opposing counsel was at all times most affable and courteous.

It is doubtful if there has appeared within the last three-quarters of a century any lawyer at any bar in Kentucky who was the superior of George W. Swoope, especially in the practice of the criminal law. His influence with juries was simply something marvelous. He had the power not only to sway juries by his public addresses, but he had that faculty which made him one of the most popular men in this Judicial district. Mr. Swoope belonged to an excellent family of people, his father having been twice a member of Congress and a very distinguished and prominent citizen in the eastern part of Kentucky where he lived.

Yours truly,

W. T. ELLIS.

b—Isaac Goodall, second child of John James and Susan (Gass) Hughes, was born in Smith Co., Tenn., Oct. 28, 1845, and died at the same place, of measles in February, 1848.

c—Ira Campbell Hughes was born in Smith Co., Tenn., Sept. 9, 1847. He married Lucy Ann Jones, a daughter of James T. and Elizabeth Ann Jones, in Crittenden Co., Kentucky, May 4, 1873. She died in November, 1874, at the birth of her first child. In April or May, 1879, he married Sallie Ann Carter, a daughter of Garland Carter. She died about 1887 or '88, and in 1890, he married Mallie Ann Mott, a daughter of James Mott, and a sister of Rev. William E. Mott.

CHAPTER X.

Gedeliah Hughes.

Of the 6 children of Powell Hughes that came from Prince Edward Co., Virginia, to Smith Co., Tenn., Gedeliah was the only one that came unmarried. He was his father's youngest child. He appears to have come to Tennessee about as early as either of his brothers. He has been described as both tall and large with black hair, altogether a very prepossessing man. He married Elizabeth Walker, a daughter of George Walker, who lived on the Cumberland river a short distance above Cedar Bluff, Smith Co., Tenn., and about 4 miles from Dixon's Springs. The place is now the property of a Mrs. Allen, and is described as a beautiful home. The present residence is brick, built after the marriage of Gedeliah and Elizabeth. After his marriage he lived on a large farm across the line in Wilson County, and owned a large number of slaves. He died early in life, hardly 40. He was always a farmer. After his death his widow married a man named George Duncan. This marriage proved to be an unhappy one for her.

Gedeliah's children were 5, as follows:

- | | |

John Powell was a farmer and lived on a part of the parental homestead, and afterward a merchant in Hartsville, Tenn. He gave a good deal of attention to fine stock. I have not the date of his death, but he died more than 50 years ago. His children that survived the age of early childhood were 8, as follows:

In 1880 he organized the Morgantown Deposit Bank, of which he was president till his death. There is every evidence that Martha Carson was a woman of rare mental force and amiability of character. The son, Justus Oliver Carson is unmarried. He is cashier of the bank organized by his father or of a bank organized by his half brother, John M. Carson. He is active in church and Sunday-school work.

e—Mildred Agnes Hughes married her cousin James Little Berry Hughes, a son of John Walker Hughes.

Their children have been given under the head of James Little Berry Hughes.

His second wife was a widow, a younger sister of his first, Mrs. Sue Lowe, nee Barxdale. He was a farmer early in life, but about 1875, he went to Nashville and engaged in the building material business, in which he has been very successful. His place of business is 901, First Avenue North, Nashville, Tenn.

So far as I am advised all the remaining 4 children of Charles Morgan Hughes are unmarried, and with him.

g—George Etta Hughes was born Dec. 26, 1850. She married William Baldry Anderson, who was born Oct. 12, 1840. He is a very prosperous farmer in Logan Co., Ky. Address, Oakville, Ky. The children of this marriage have been 3, as follows:

1—Hugh William. 2—Harry Powell.

3—Mary Agnes.

READING FROM LEFT TO RIGHT:—JOHN LACY,
WILLIAM THOMAS AND WALTER SAMUEL JAMES

1—Hugh William Anderson was born July 8, 1887. He is a flagman on the Louisville & Nashville railroad. He is not married.

2—Harry Powell Anderson was born Nov. 9, 1891. He is still with his parents and in school.

3—Mary Agnes Anderson was born Jan. 23, 1895, and died July 6, 1896.

h—Kate Martin Hughes married John Snoddy. She died, leaving 4 children, as follows:

1—Carson.

2—Odelia.

3—Mabel.

4—William.

I regret that I am not sufficiently advised of the 4 Snoddy children to make any statement concerning their history.

2—William Leander Hughes was twice married. His first wife was Sallie Burford, of Smith Co., Tenn. His second was Sallie Bell of Wilson Co., Tenn. He married his first wife about 1840. She was a daughter of John Hawkinds Burford, who was a soldier in the War of 1812, and a great-grand-daughter of the noted divine, Rev. Daniel Burford, one of the pioneer preachers of that section of country. She was related to Major David Burford, who was in his day one of the most prominent men of affairs in his community. The Burford family has, from the days of the cane brakes down to the present, been one of the most public spirited and conspicuous in the history of Smith County.

A few years after William Leander's marriage he bought from his brother, John Powell, his farm which was a part of the paternal estate, and John Powell went to Hartsville, Tenn., and engaged in the mercantile business. A few years later he went to Williamson County, Illinois. After a two years' residence there his wife died. He then moved back to Smith Co., Tenn., where he spent the remainder of his life. His children made their home with their mother's parents till their father's second marriage, which was about 4 years from the death of his first wife. The oldest child, Araminta, continued with her grand-parents till she married.

I have the testimony of this daughter that her step-mother was a most estimable woman, very kind and motherly to her step children. William Leander was a farmer. He died near Dixon's Springs, Tenn. There were no children of the second marriage. Of the first, there were 4, as follows:

- | | |
|--------------------|------------------|
| a—Araminta Dormer. | c—John Gideon. |
| b—Lafayette. | d—Mary Victoria. |

a—Araminta Dormer Hughes was born Dec. 26, 1841. She married Samuel Moody Bransford, a Confederate soldier, and a farmer, at Dixon's Springs, Tenn., Dec. 23, 1863. He was instantly killed by the explosion of Shaw's mill, near Dixon's Springs, Tenn., May 16, 1879. He had no interest in the mill. In passing by, he stepped in to speak to some one inside, when the boiler gave way in a terrific explosion, killing Mr. Bransford. No others were killed, though several were seriously injured. Mrs. Bransford was left with 2 sons aged respectively 11 and 7 years. She had lost 2 little girls by death. The names of her sons were as follows:

- | | |
|--------------------|--------------------|
| 1—William Richard. | 2—Gideon Fletcher. |
|--------------------|--------------------|

1—William Richard Bransford married Virginia Mayes of Huntsville, Alabama. For a number of years he traveled for a wholesale house in Chattanooga at a large salary. His wife belonged to an excellent family, and a bright and happy life lay before him apparently; but he contracted typhoid fever, and died at Huntsville, Ala., in 1898, leaving 1 child, a daughter, named Mary Elizabeth Bransford. His widow has married A. J. Nichols, an architect. Address, Huntsville, Ala.

2—Gideon Fletcher Bransford married Mary Bowman, of Riddleton, Tenn. He is a farmer, living on a farm of his own one-half mile from Dixon's Springs on the turn-pike leading from that place to Carthage, Tenn. His mother lives with him. His children are 4, as follows, with their ages given:

- 1—Elizabeth Hughes, 14. 3—James Samuel, 9.
2—William Richard, 12. 4—Martha Thompson, 6.

b—Fafayette Hughes was killed in the Confederate army in 1863. He was unmarried.

c—John Gideon Hughes went West, and has not been heard from in the last 20 years. He is supposed to be dead. If living he would be about 60 years old. So far as known he never married.

d—Mary Victoria Hughes married William Kyle, and moved to Texas. She died, leaving 3 children, whose names are not known. All traces of the family were lost several years ago.

3—Berry Hughes, son of Gedeliah Hughes, Sr., died of consumption at his brother John Powell's, when not quite 21 years old.

4—Eliza Hughes, sister of the above, died in childhood.

5—Gedeliah or Gideon Hughes was a posthumous child, born a few months after his father's death, and named for his father. He appears to have made his home with his brother John Powell Hughes till his marriage. He married Rowena Jones who lived near McMinnville, Tenn., and was engaged in the mercantile business in that town till about the close of the Civil War when he went to Dallas, Texas. At some subsequent time, he died at the latter place. His widow returned with her children to her people. It appears that there were several children of this marriage, but I am not advised as to the number, or the names of any of them.

CHAPTER XI.

Samuel or John Gass.

As to the name of the original progenitor of our branch of the Gass family in America there has been some confusion. That it was either Samuel or John there is no reason to doubt. He came from Ireland, probably as early as 1740, and perhaps after temporary halts at other places, finally settled in Pennsylvania only a few miles from Philadelphia. It is thought that he married in Ireland, but the name of his wife has not been handed down to his descendants.

There is nothing now positively known of the names of any of his children except Samuel, about whose name there is no doubt whatever, and who was my great-grandfather.

Here I will mention the fact that nearly sixty years ago, when I was a very small boy, I heard my grandfather, Joseph Gass, a son of Samuel, say that he (Joseph) had an uncle with Daniel Boone in Kentucky. Now, it is a fact well known in Kentucky history, that Miss Jennie Gass, a daughter of John Gass, Miss Jemima Boone and a Miss Fletcher, while amusing themselves in a boat in Kentucky river near the fort at Boonesboro, were surprised and captured and carried away by a band of Indians. They were pursued and the girls all rescued unharmed. I have always believed that this John Gass was the uncle referred to by my grand-father. If so he was a brother, probably an older brother, of my great-grandfather, Samuel Gass. This appears to me to be a very strong case of circumstantial evidence, but in the absence of any positive proof connecting us with John Gass, I leave the reader to draw his own deductions.

The name of Gass often appears in the civil and political history of Tennessee. John Gass was one of the representatives from Green County in the first General Assembly of the State, which convened on March 28, 1796, and appears to have been elected to the second and third General Assemblies.

One T. N. Gass represented Rhea County in the Legislature that was elected in 1880.

Whether or not any of these were related to Samuel I have no means of ascertaining.

Now, to return to Samuel Gass. He grew to manhood under the parental roof in Pennsylvania, and married Nancy Rose, said to be of English parentage. This union was blessed with 12 children, given in the order of their ages, as follows:

| | | |
|-----------|-----------|--------------|
| 1—John. | 5—Hannah. | 9—Peggy. |
| 2—Joseph. | 6—Henry. | 10—Samuel. |
| 3—Mollie. | 7—Dávid. | 11—Jonathan. |
| 4—Nancy. | 8—Rachel. | 12—Bettie. |

The reader will note the fact that there are both a John and a Jonathan. It is probable that the correct names of Mollie and Peggy were Mary and Margaret respectively, and that Bettie's name was Elizabeth.

When the second son, Joseph, my maternal grandfather, was about 12 years old, which was about the year 1796, Samuel left his Pennsylvania home, and following the trough-like valleys of the Apalachian chain, as the custom with emigrants then was, he moved down into Hawkins County, East Tennessee, and settled on a farm on the North Fork of Holston river.

Here he remained for about 8 years, when about 1804, he removed to Monroe County, Kentucky. In 1819 he again took the emigrant trail, moving this time to Franklin County, Tennessee. There he bought, and settled on a farm on Big Crow Creek, where he spent the remainder of his life. He died there in 1827.

Now, for a brief sketch of the marriages of Samuel's children.

Henry, David and Rachel all died unmarried, but as to the times, places or circumstances of their respective deaths, I am wholly unadvised.

1—John married Tamar Cheeney in Monroe Co., Ky., and afterwards moved to Illinois, after which he disappears from the family history.

3—Mollie married William Condrey in Monroe Co., Ky. They spent their lives and died in that county, and their descendants, or some of them at least, live there now. Mr. Condrey appears to have been a man of considerable talent, a sort of genius, but very eccentric and erratic. He was at one time a captain of militia, and it is said would attend the musters, so common in those days, dressed in a suit of the finest blue broad cloth regimentals, epauletts on his shoulders, a military plume in his hat, a shining sword by his side and—barefooted. He once made the race for the Legislature, but was defeated. It has been said that his eccentric acts were the principal factor in his defeat. It appears that no one doubted either his ability or his integrity.

4—Nancy Gass married Job Odell either in Monroe Co., Ky., or the adjoining County of Jackson, Tenn. They afterwards went West, and were last heard from in Texas.

5—Hannah Gass married John Sammonds in Franklin Co., Tenn., went to Walker Co., Georgia, thence to Arkansas, and all trace of them became lost.

9—Peggy Gass married William Barnett in Franklin County, Tennessee, and afterwards moved to some part of Georgia, and nothing more is definitely known of them or their descendants.

10—Samuel Gass, Jr., married Priscilla Williams in Franklin Co., Tenn., and moved to Rutherford Co., Tenn. Nothing more is known of them. I recently addressed a letter of inquiry to the Sheriff of that county, and received the information that nobody bearing the name of Gass now lives in his county.

11—Jonathan Gass married Mary Crownover in Franklin Co., Tenn., and is thought to have moved to Alabama, and nothing more is known of him.

12—Bettie Gass married in Rutherford Co., Tenn., but the name of her husband has been forgotten. At the time of her marriage her widowed mother had moved to Rutherford Co., Tenn., and she and her mother may have been living together, or what is more probable, they may have both been living with Samuel.

2—Although Joseph Gass was the second one of his father's children, I omitted his sketch till the last because he being my grand-father, I shall be able to say more about him and his posterity than about any of his brothers and sisters from the fact that I know more about them.

While Samuel Gass and his family were residing in Monroe Co., Ky., about the year 1811 or '12, Joseph came down into Smith County, Tenn., and engaged in making saltpeter on Peyton's Creek. Here he met Nancy Griffin Boze, a daughter of Hardy Boze. This accidental backwoods meeting was the fateful episode that sooner or later comes to most men, and women as well. This casual acquaintance, formed beneath the umbrageous branches of the forest primeval, ripened into friendship, and friendship, under the magic spell of tender words, met by furtive glances shot out from beneath eyebrows that formed a rich setting in a forehead of alabaster, whose beauty was heightened by a profusion of blushes, such as are never seen except when some coy maiden with downcast eyes inclines her head, and for the first time in her young life, listens to the rapturous tale of love as it is poured into her ears by some manly and stalwart young swain, reached its full fruition, when on the 30th day of December, 1812, the 'Squire pronounced them one; and they faithfully began life's battle with their naked hands as their only weapons.

My grand-father was strictly a farmer. He continued to reside in Smith County, Tenn., till 1828, when at the request of his mother, he moved to Franklin Co., Tenn., and took charge of her farm, his father, as already stated, having died the previous year. He remained in Franklin Co. till 1832, when he moved back to Smith County, and bought a farm of about 200 acres from John Cooper, father of Timothy Cooper. This farm lay along the east bank of Caney Fork River, the lower end of the tract being exactly opposite the mouth of Mulherrin's Creek. It was a tract of very fertile land.

My grand-mother died December, 1842, on her 50th birthday. He later married Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes, widow of my uncle Gideon Hughes and a daughter of Obadiah Paris. She died in June, 1856. My grand-father died on the night of Oct. 9, 1857, at the age of about 73, having spent the last 25 years of his life on his Caney Fork farm in quiet retirement, surrounded with comfort and plenty, if not in luxury.

I was in my 14th year when my grand-father Gass died. He was the only one of my grand-parents that I ever saw, the others all having died before I was born. As already stated he was Irish on his father's side and English on his mother's, but he possessed all the better characteristics of a full-blooded Irishman. The Irish brogue could be clearly detected in almost every sentence that he uttered, and he was rich in all the better and nobler attributes of that remarkable race. He was quick to anger, but as quick to forgive. If his language was some times more vigorous than classic his intentions were always right.

His education was extremely limited, he being barely able to read, and to write a very little; but he was a voracious reader, and few persons in his community were as well informed in history as was he. He was especially well versed in the sacred Scriptures, which it was interesting to hear him discuss. He was never connected with any church, but he held religion in the greatest respect and reverence. Throughout his entire life he faced the pulpit and its worthy ministrants with far greater regularity than do many church members. He dispensed a plain but bountiful hospitality with a liberal hand. His latch-string hung ever on the outside; and beneath his humble roof, the weary and hungry wayfarer could always find both shelter and food sauced with a royal welcome. He was a provident husband and father, an obliging neighbor, a model citizen. I know nothing of the religion of his father, but his mother was a devout Baptist. She has been described as a very pious and saintly woman. How much of his veneration for religion he received at her knees, or what influence the infusion of her cool English blood wielded in soothing and holding in check his mercurial Irish impetuosity may never be known. He was the soul of honor. His word was as good as his bond, and his bond was as good as the Bank of England.

Joseph Gass was a diamond in the rough, and there is many a rougher diamond. Peace to his ashes!

There were born of his two marriages 16 children, as follows:

In the latter years of her life she wrote her name Susan, and was known altogether by that name. She was born in Smith Co., Tennessee, Sept. 9, 1822, and died in Crittenden Co., Ky., July 16, 1899. She married John James Hughes, in whose sketch will be found a full history of her children.

CHAPTER XII.

John Boze and Katy Wells.

John Boze was a poor country boy, reared and hardened for the most strenuous duties of life, amid the mountains of Eastern Wales. Just across the boundary line in England lived pretty Katy Wells. John loved Katy and Katy loved John; but John's family was poor while Katy's was rich, or at least it was more pretentious than John's, and Katy's parents set the ban of their disapproval upon the fondness of the young couple for each other. With haughty pride they reminded Katy of the great gulf that lay between her and John Boze, and finally forbade the boy to again approach the Wells mansion.

Here we have a striking exemplification of the old alliterative adage, "love laughs at lock-smiths." When the young couple had exhausted all other resources, had used every argument to obtain the parental consent, they secretly bade farewell to the home of their childhood, to the dear green hills and purling crystal streams of Cornwall and of Wales, the scenes that they loved so well, that had become a part of their being, but which they were destined never again to behold; and made their way to the coast, and took shipping for America. After the usual incidents attending a trip across the Atlantic in an old-time sail vessel, they landed with empty pockets, but buoyant spirits, in Virginia, most probably at Norfolk, where they were married in simple American style. Either then or later, they pushed westward, probably by successive moves till they reached Halifax county, then practically an unbroken wilderness. This was about the year 1750, or probably a few years later. Here in the very lap of nature, inhaling the sweetness of the wild rose, together with an abundance of malaria, serenaded by wolves at night, and regaled by the song of the mocking bird in the morning, poor in purse, but with the love and fear of God in their hearts, they passed the remainder of their lives. To this marriage were born 4 children, 3 sons and 1 daughter, as follows:

MRS. MARY HOOKER

1—Richard.

3—Hardy.

2—Griffin.

4—Katie or Kittie.

When the war for American independence commenced John and the two oldest sons, Richard and Griffin all enlisted in the American army, and according to the family tradition, served through the war. It is certainly true that they all enlisted and served long terms whether they served entirely through the war or not. Hardy, the youngest son, offered to enlist, but was rejected on account of his age, he being only 13 at the time. He remained at home, and took care of his mother and sister, as well, perhaps, as could be expected of a boy of his age. He was my maternal great-grand-father. It appears that later in life Hardy served in some of the Indian wars, and tradition says that he served in the War of 1812.

After the close of the Revolutionary War, the father and the two older boys returned home. The father died soon after, and Richard and Griffin married, but I have not learned the names of their wives, nor do I know anything further of their history. I think they spent their entire lives in Virginia. Kitty married John or Jack Hastings. Her son, Jack Hastings, married in Virginia, and afterwards moved to Smith Co., Tenn., and remained there a while, but appears to have moved away, and all trace of him and his descendants has been lost.

Hardy, after the death of his father, was apprenticed to a carpenter, and after serving out his apprenticeship, married Peggy Brooks, whose parents were English, and about the time of his marriage, or soon after, he moved westward from Halifax to Lunenburg Co., Va. In the year 1804, he having then been married about 13 or 14 years, started on the long, toilsome and dangerous journey of several hundred miles, through gloomy forest solitudes, over rugged mountains and across unbridged streams, to Smith Co., Tenn., then little more than a wilderness. The greater part of the country through which he passed was very sparsely inhabited, while there were long stretches without a human habitation. The mountain fastnesses were infested with bands of robbers that rendered travel very unsafe. The country was almost destitute of roads, each emigrant getting over them as best he could, doing only so much work as would enable him to pass, and leaving the next man to take care of himself.

The usual lines of travel at that day lay almost directly across the labyrinth of parallel ridges that constitute the Appalachian chain. After crossing a valley, the emigrant would hunt for a place where a creek debouched into the valley, and would follow that stream, some times on one side, and again on the other, clinging to the mountain side, men, women and children pushing to assist the team in ascending, often using guy ropes to prevent the vehicle from turning over, and rolling down the mountain side. When the summit was reached, the team would frequently be detached from the wagon, and while one strong man would manipulate the tongue, all hands, with ropes and every available means, would ease the vehicle down.

In crossing one of the many ranges, I think it was the Cumberland mountain, grand-father Boze's wagon was overturned, and his oldest child, Nancy Griffin, my grandmother, then 12 years old, had her right arm broken. Here we have an eloquent reminder of the toils, hardships, privations, dangers and sufferings that were endured by those men, women and children that by incredible toil and suffering made possible the happiness and prosperity that we now enjoy. With few exceptions, they belonged to that brave, hardy, large-hearted, unselfish, uncomplaining, heroic class of men and women that in all the ages, have led the van of civilization, and laid deep and strong, the foundations of empire. For the benefit of posterity, they sail the stormy deep. They land upon unknown shores, and invade and subdue the rugged and stubborn forces of nature. They clear away the tangled brake, level the forest, tunnel the mountains and bridge the rivers. They cause populous and opulent cities to rise where erstwhile was heard only the howling of wild beasts and the still more hideous yell of the savage; they make the desert to bloom like a flower garden. With bleeding feet they tread down the thorns where succeeding generations in satin slippers walk daintily over beds of roses.

Here was this child of tender years with her arm broken in the midst of a howling wilderness, without the chance of medical or surgical treatment except such as the family with clumsy, though loving hands, could give. It is very probable that that arm was not seen by a physician or surgeon till the time had been reached when all professional treatment must be unavailing. At the time of the accident weeks of travel yet lay before them, all of which must be made through a forest, dotted by a small clearing and a cabin only at long intervals, the poor child sustaining several jolts for each revolution of the wheel, and in a clumsy, rumbling vehicle, compared with which a modern log wagon would be preferable for easy riding. Under all these incredible difficulties this child must traverse all those long weary miles, often, no doubt, compelled to walk long distances with her arm in a sling. Out of all these sufferings she came seriously crippled for life. To the time of her death she had only a partial use of her right arm.

At last their Western home was reached, and what was that home? A camp-fire in the midst of gloomy forests, and interminable cane brakes, but with a soil of unsurpassed fertility, and pure, crystal spring water without stint.

"A solitude of vast extent, untouched
By hand, of art; where nature sow'd herself,
And reap'd her crops."

Hardy Boze appears to have settled down first on the north side of the Cumberland river, which divides Smith County, running west. At some later period, but exactly when I do not know, he moved over to the south side and settled on the Caney Fork opposite the mouth of Bluff Creek, and about 3 miles from Carthage. Here he lived till after the death of his wife. Some years after her death he abandoned housekeeping, and spent the remainder of his life with his children. He died in the late summer of 1850. His age at the time of his death was between 85 and 90. The remains of both his wife and himself repose in the quiet, secluded, old-fashioned graveyard on the bank of the Caney Fork at the head of Pipers Island not exceeding 200 yards from the spot where stood the house in which they lived so long. He lived a most exemplary and blameless life, but was not a success in the accumulation of worldly pelf. He died a poor man; but he has a large number of descendants in that locality that have proven to be very thrifty, successful men.

Hardy Boze reared a family of 12 children, 5 sons and 7 daughters. Named as nearly in the order of their ages as can now be ascertained, they were as follows:

3—Peggy Boze married Archibald Gibbs. She died about the year 1858 or '59, having survived her husband several years. Her children were 11. I give them below, but I can not say that the list is in the exact order of their ages. I think it is approximately so:

He lived on a very fertile farm on the Caney Fork about 2 miles from Carthage on the road leading from Cedar Point church to the mouth of the Caney Fork. He died more than 30 years ago. I regret that I have not the exact date. He was twice married. His first wife was Huldah or Mahulda Perkins. His second was Polly Paty. The children of the two marriages were 7, as follows:

It is very probable that at least some of the above have middle names, but if so I have failed to get them.

g—Judith Gibbs never married. She died many years ago.

h—Fannie Gibbs, the only one of her mother's children now living, married William Boze, her cousin. He was a son of Richard Boze. They live in Missouri. There were 3 children:

He owned a large number of slaves, to whom he was always kind and considerate. He died in 1857. His wife survived him several years. Their children were 10 in number, 5 sons and 5 daughters, as follows:

| b—Americus D. | g—Araminta Cheek. |
| c—James. | t—Judith. |
| d—Charles. | i—Arlisba. |

Taking the whole family, the above list does not show the order of age. The sons and the daughters were given me separate, and of course their births did not occur, as the above list would indicate.

9—James Boze was twice married. His first wife was Eliza Brown. His second was Lucy Parrott, a daughter of Benjamin Parrott. James Boze moved to Southeast Missouri about 1848.

10—Richard Boze married Mary Ann Brown. He moved to Southeast Missouri about 1851.

11—Millie Boze married John O. Paty. They moved to Southeast Missouri about 1870.

The 3 women named Brown, that married John, James and Richard Boze, respectively, were sisters. They were daughters of William Brown (Uncle Billy).

This closes the very brief account of the children of my maternal great-grand-father, Hardy Boze. I regret that I could not give more information concerning their children, but it was impossible for me to do so.

CHAPTER XIII.

John Ward and Holly Mangrum.

Because of the extensive and intimate relationship existing between the Hughes and Ward families I give below a very brief history of the older members of the latter family, although they were primarily not related at all to our family.

In the days of the cane brakes, not far from the year 1800, John Ward came from Eastern Virginia to Smith Co., Tenn., and settled in the wilderness about 1½ miles west of the home of John Gordon, around which, in later years, grew up the thriving village of Gordonsville. Either before or soon after Mr. Ward made his settlement as stated, a road was opened from Trousdale's ferry to Nashville. This road ran along the south side of his farm. At some time about that period a road was opened from Carthage to Gordon's. That road ran along the east or north-east side of his farm, intersecting the other road at the south-east corner of the Ward land. Thus was the Ward place situated in the angle formed by these two roads. The farm is now the property of Thomas J. Winfrey.

Before coming to Smith County, Mr. Ward had married Holly Mangrum in Virginia. She appears to have been the only child of Mourning Mangrum. The name of Mourning Mangrum before her first marriage and the Christian name of her husband are both unknown to the writer. After the death of Mr. Mangrum, the widow married James Thomas, and became the mother of Champion T., Diggs W. and Solomon Thomas, all well known in Smith Co., Tenn., from 50 to 60 years ago. Diggs W. married Judith Paris, a daughter of Obadiah Paris, reared a large family, and moved to Johnson Co., Mo., in 1855.

There he passed the remainder of his life. Champion and Solomon spent their entire lives in Smith Co., Tenn.

Now, to return to John and Holly Ward. Like so many of the men that settled and helped to mould the future destiny of that country, and to stamp their imperishable impress upon it, Mr. Ward appears to have been a man of unblemished character and sterling qualities. He and his wife spent the last half century of their lives on the farm that I have tried to describe. There Mr. Ward died Dec. 6, 1847, and his wife, Holly on Aug. 14, 1835. I regret that I have not the dates of their births. Mrs. Ward's mother, Mrs. Mourning Thomas, died at a very advanced age, I think a year or two after the death of her daughter, Mrs. Ward. The Ward children were 9 in number, as follows:

She died in probably less than 1 year after marriage, leaving no children. After her death, Dr. Ward married Miss Elizabeth Hicks Wheeler, a most excellent and cultured lady of Philadelphia, Pa., with whom he became acquainted while he was attending medical lectures in that city. He was a very skillful and successful physician. Immediately, or very soon after his second marriage he moved to Knob Noster, Mo., where he died in 1871 in the midst of a large and lucrative practice. After his death his widow went to Kansas City, Mo., and resided with her daughter, Mrs. Pennington. 9—Mary Ann Ward, youngest child of John and Holly (Mangrum) Ward, married Matthew Harper, Jr. He was most generally called Mack. He was a farmer and trader. He built and launched and laded the last flat boat that was ever built on the old boat yard at the mouth of Mulherrin's creek, where that stream unites with the Caney Fork, and where so many flat boats were built, and laded and started on their long journey to New Orleans during the first half of the last century. It was in 1850 that this last boat was built at that yard. My father at the time was living across the river opposite the boat yard and worked on the boat during its building. I saw the boat launched. The steamboat was then rapidly supplanting the flat boat and keel boat in the river carrying trade, just as the railroad has now crowded out the steamboat. What next? The airship?

About the year 1854 or '55 Mr. Harper and his family moved to Pettis Co., Mo., and at some later period moved to Nebraska, where both he and his wife died several years ago. The children of this marriage that survived the age of infancy were 6, as follows:

e—Mack Sterling Harper is not married. He is a carpenter. I failed to get his address.

f—Sallie Holly Harper married John Edwards, a cousin to Avan's first wife and a brother to his last. Sallie is dead.

The history is now completed. The tale is told; but I can not lay down my pen without one fond, lingering, Parthian glance at dear old Smith County, the home of my childhood.

Not long ago I read a newspaper article, written by a Northern writer, describing certain military operations of the Civil War in Middle Tennessee in the month of February. In that article he described the day as one "such as is never seen at that time of year outside of the State of Tennessee." Oh, how that carried my memory back to those glorious, deliriously beautiful days that I passed in that delightful region more than a half century ago. Calm, quiet, clear, tranquil, halcyon days were those, when all nature was at rest, and conditions were such that mere existence was enjoyment.

Tennessee has been called the Switzerland of America, and also the Italy of the Western Continent. Surely those appellations are not undeserved. Often have I climbed her tallest hills in spring time, and with rapturous delight gazed upon her matchless landscapes, embracing hill and vale and ridge and mound and level meadow,—one vast billowy expanse, clothed in green, like a sea of emeralds rocked and tossed by a tempest. And when the mellow, golden, hazy days of autumn came I climbed those hills again, and looked out over that waving vista now clothed in a dress of red and green and yellow and brown and purple, reflecting the rays of the sun like burnished jewels, while winding among them were bright limpid streams, like silver threads, stringing those jewels together.

For fifty years I have been a self exile from that region with all its attributes of fertile fields, purling streams and bubbling springs of crystal water, fit nectar for the gods; but through all these years her memory has never grown dim.

What can I say of that delectable stream, the Caney Fork, the first river upon which my eyes ever gazed. It is a river with a very prozy name, but a more beautiful, a more romantic, a more poetic stream never rolled its silvery waters over golden pebbles to the deep blue sea.

On the bank of that stream, where it parts like a rippling flood of molten silver around the head of Piper's Island sleep the remains of my maternal grand-mother, both of her parents, one of her sons and a number of other relatives, while the music of the water of this classic stream in rhythmic cadences, chants their requiem forever.

THE END.
